Democrats Build Up Steam For Wide-Open Convention

Shakeups Continue At Michigan Prison

JACKSON, Mich.—(AP)— Another major personnel shakeup at Southern Michigan prison was announced today.

George L. Bacon, who has been assistant deputy warden in charge of custody, was placed on "special duty."

On Way Out

Acting Warden William H. Bannan, who took over administration of the huge prison only last week from Warden Julian N. Frisbie, declined to say what Bacon's duties would be.

It was recalled, however, that Dr. Vernon Fox was placed on similar status after the disastrous April riot and mutiny before being relieved of his job.

Charles Cahill, an inspector in the uniformed prison guard, was promoted to Bacon's job, one of the top ones in the setup.

Other changes were involved too.

Gorge Kropp, another assistant deputy warden in charge of the trusty division, was promoted to deputy warden at the Michigan reformatory at Ionia. This is the post vacated by Bannan. No successor to Kropp was announced.

Assistant Demoted

Robert Northrup, who held an assistant deputy warden's title but was under Bacon in the custody division, was placed in charge of the prison guard training school. This was regarded as a demotion.

Capt. Harold Tucker of the uniformed guard, a central figure in quelling the April riot, was named to replace Northrup.

Guard Capt. Chester Powers was made an acting inspector—top rank in the guard—replacing Cahill.

Eisenhower Amateur, Says Top CIO Leader

By ROWLAND EVANS JR.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A top CIO leader today termed Dwight D. Eisenhower, Republican presidential candidate, a "rank amateur" in the field of civil government and said that on major domestic issues he would be a "prisoner of his own advisers."

Joseph A. Beirne, a CIO vice president and head of 300,000 CIO communications workers, said in an interview before leaving for Chicago and the Democratic presidential convention:

"Eisenhower has unquestionably been a great military leader but if he is elected president he will be helpless on the great domestic issues facing the country such as the Taft-Hartley labor law, civil rights legislation, federal aid to the states and others.

"He will have to depend completely on his advisers in making domestic policy decisions, rather than making up his own mind."

No Labor Bloc

Beirne is a member of the platform committee at the national Democratic convention. One of the CIO's newer and younger leaders, he is sometimes regarded as a possible successor to CIO President Philip Murray.

Some segments of organized labor have been finding fault with Eisenhower for months. The CIO, staunch supporter of Democratic national candidates ever since its formation in 1936, recently said editorially in one of its publications that Eisenhower's campaign was "out-Tafting Taft."

But the other and larger labor confederation, the AFL, does not now, nor has it ever, counted all its leaders in the same political camp.

Samuel Gompers, one of the founders of the AFL, was a conservative. He steered clear of party affiliation, opposed the formation of a labor party and urged his followers to vote for the friends of labor.

Actually, observers say the term "labor vote" has little significance. Organized labor does not vote in a hard bloc no matter how strenuously its political leaders may work for a candidate.

Call Their Own Shots

In 1950 Sen. Robert A. Taft was reelected in Ohio with a huge majority despite a vigorous campaign by organized labor in behalf of his Democratic opponent. The Taft victory in 1950 indicated that union members call their own voting shots.

Nor do top officials of organized labor all think alike politically.

William Hutcheson, former president of the AFL carpenters, was a delegate from Indiana to the Republican national convention last week and, with Eugene Pulliam, Indianapolis publisher, made a pro-Eisenhower minority of two in the protest delegation.

Another AFL leader, Al Hayes of the machinists, recently blasted the labor plank of the GOP platform as a "definite indication the GOP favors an inferior class status for our working population."

The GOP platform gave renewed support to the controversial Taft-Hartley Act with "such amendments as time and experience show to be desirable and which further protects the rights of labor, management and the public."

Finish Of Lapeer Feud Delayed

LAPEER, Mich.—(AP)—The deal that was expected to settle the long and sometimes bloody evictions fight in Lapeer county was reported without confirmation today to be "off."

A source close to the situation said that a Detroit group which reportedly had offered to buy two disputed farms and give them back to their original owners had cancelled the offer.

No reasons were given immediately.

Mrs. Grace White, Lapeer attorney who bought the farms of Mrs. Elizabeth Stevens and Chris and Paul Ziegenhardt at sheriff's auctions, declined comment.

Under terms of the proposed deal, Mrs. White would have sold the two farms to the Detroit group. The latter in turn would have returned the farms to Mrs. Stevens and the Ziegenhardt Brothers.

At the embattled Stevens farm, scene of a wild eviction brawl Friday and a tense guard by deputies Saturday, all was quiet in the meantime. Sheriff Clark Gregory said that an inspection at 10:30 p. m. last night the farm still was padlocked and none of Mrs. Stevens' property had been moved back.

Mrs. White's tenant, Richard Newman of Flint, moved out hastily Saturday after the sheriff called back his deputies on word that a deal was ready to be consumated.

Twelve of the widow's proponents appeared in court today.

His Last Parade

CHURCH HILL, Md.—(AP)—Fred Blickenstaff always did love a parade and walked off with several prizes for his colorful costumes. Last night the 65-year-old "crab man" of Maryland's eastern shore added his bit of levity to the local firemen's parade. After the march he collapsed and was pronounced dead of a heart attack.

Ford Co. Loses NPA Plea For More Materials

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The government rejected today Ford Motor Company's bid for a bigger share of the materials parceled out to the auto industry.

The decision by the National Production Authority represents a victory for the Chrysler Corporation, which would have lost its No. 2 rank among the motor companies had Ford won out. General Motors is first.

Small Firms Opposed

Most of the industry's small independent companies joined Chrysler in opposition to the Ford appeal to the NPA. The small firms would have lost part of their materials had Ford won.

General Motors took no part in the bitterly-contested battle before the NPA appeals board.

In its appeal filed last month, Ford claimed it lost about 250 million dollars under NPA's system of dividing up materials according to each producer's position in the industry in the period, 1947 through 1949.

GM Gets 41 Per Cent

Ford lawyers said the proper base period should have been the year immediately preceding the start of fighting in Korea. This would have given Ford 23.42 per cent of the industry's share of controlled metals for passenger cars, instead of the 21 per cent it now gets.

Chrysler would have obtained a share more than the 21.43 per cent it now receives, but would have dropped to third rank in the industry behind GM, which tops the field with 41 per cent.

Korea Military Targets Bombed

SEOUL, Korea—(AP)—United Nations warplanes today battered Communist targets near the North Korean capital of Pyongyang and along the western front.

Planes from two fighter-bomber wings hit a locomotive repair shop and cement factory east of Pyongyang. Direct hits were reported on both targets, causing one secondary explosion. Pilots said they also smashed two buildings.

Military targets in Pyongyang were blasted heavily in giant U. N. air raids last week.

Air Force and Marine planes striking front line positions in the west reported destruction of 15 troop bunkers and six gun emplacements.

Ground fighting lapsed into routine patrol skirmishes.

A U. S. Eighth Army staff officer said that in four days of hill fighting on the east coast the Reds have lost an estimated 327 killed and 265 wounded. U. N. troops held control of the contested heights.

Big Earl Shelton's Building Dynamited

FAIRFIELD, Ill—(AP)—A violent explosion in a two-story brick building owned by the notorious big Earl Shelton early today wrecked the structure and damaged several other buildings in the Public Square.

Most of the city's 6,000 residents were awakened by the blast, which occurred at 1:25 a. m. (CST). Hundreds rushed to the square.

Police were without clues in a hunt for persons who set off the blast, which was another in a series of reprisals against the fading Shelton clan.

Owner In Indiana

No one was injured. The Shelton building, housing a restaurant on the first floor, was the last piece of property owned in Fairfield by the one-time southern Illinois gang leader. The second floor—former big Earl's gambling headquarters—was vacant.

The notorious Shelton gang terrorized southern Illinois in the prohibition era.

Big Earl, who is 58, left Fairfield more than 18 months ago and is believed living somewhere in Indiana. On May 24, 1949, he was shot and seriously wounded as he played poker in his gambling club on the second floor of the building bombed today.

Brothers Murdered

Three of big Earl's brothers, were slain in gang style—from 1947 to 1950. On Oct. 25, 1947, Carl was cut down by 16 slugs from a passing car near his home. On July 26, 1948, Bernie, at 50, was ambushed and killed by a single rifle bullet as he stepped from his club near Peoria. On June 7, 1950, Roy Shelton, 64, was killed on his farm by a single bullet that came from a bush-covered ditch.

A cafe-roadhouse of Shelton's sister Lulu Bell and her husband, Guy Pennington, was bombed near Fairfield June 19, 1949. The next night it burned to the ground.

Crop-Duster Planes Collide; Two Killed Near Phoenix, Ariz

PHOENIX, Ariz. — (AP) — Two crop-duster planes smashed together on the ground and exploded in flames last night, killing two men and injuring two others at Paradise airport.

The dead were identified as Louis Gutierrez, 18, Sunnyslope, Ariz., and Martin Lieb, 17, Cactus, Ariz. Both were passengers in a plane piloted by Jack Coyner, 35, Phoenix, who was critically burned.

Carl Nicholson, 35, Phoenix, pilot of the other craft, escaped with minor burns and a slight back injury.

The two aircraft collided head-on with terrific force while roaring along a runway obscured by billowing clouds of dust stirred by wind and back wash from airplane propellors.

Nicholson's ship was starting to take off and Coyner's was landing.

Two Convicted In Camp Killing

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — (AP) — Circuit Judge James R. Breakey, Jr., in a routine manner, today sentenced Sylvester Salva, 20, of Detroit and Jack Howard, 19, of Muskegon to life in Southern Michigan prison for the March 31 slaying of a fellow inmate at Cassidy Lake Technical School.

After the pair were convicted here last night of the knife-slaying of 19-year-old Anthony Bedard, Salva's mother, Mrs. Kenneth Salva, 41, was taken to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital when she collapsed upon hearing the verdict.

A jury of nine women and three men deliberated for 3½ hours before arriving at a unanimous verdict last night.

Howard, Salva and Bedard lived in the same unit of the Cassidy Lake camp, a branch of Southern Michigan prison.

The state contended that the slaying was premeditated by Howard and Salva to prevent Bedard from telling authorities of activities they thought might have damaged their chances for future parole.

Before the trial, police claimed that Howard had admitted striking Bedard on the head with an iron pipe during a scuffle. Howard testified at the trial that during the struggle Salva took a knife away from Bedard and stabbed him with it.

About a month after the slaying Bedard's body was found wired to a cement block at the bottom of a camp septic tank.

Climber Falls Mile; Gets Only Bruises

DUNSMUIR, Calif.—(AP)—A San Francisco mountain climber fell nearly a mile down the almost-vertical, snowy side of 14,165-foot Mt. Shasta yesterday and escaped with only bruises and abrasions.

Dan O'Neill, 34, said the only thing that saved his life was his use of swimming techniques to avoid rocks and other obstacles in his 40-mile an hour, head-first slide on his stomach.

"I kept my head, used my toes as brakes and steered with my forearms," he said.

Government Revives Negotiations To End 44-Day Steel Strike

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—New steel strike peace talks ended today with industry and the CIO United Steelworkers in disagreement but standing by for further word from the White House.

After a two-hour bargaining session, President Philip Murray of the striking union issued a joint statement which said John R. Steelman, presidential assistant, asked both sides to stand by.

Still Disagree

The statement by Murray and vice president Joseph M. Larkin of Bethlehem Steel said:

"We have continued our discussions this morning and are still in disagreement. We have reported that by telephone to Dr. Steelman. He has requested that we stand by for further word from him."

Murray told newsmen he expected to hear from Steelman within a few hours.

Steelman arranged the talks. He acted after a round of week-end discussions raised hope—then failed—in settling the 44-day-old dispute.

Steelman telephoned both union and industry representatives from Washington yesterday and insisted on a new try for peace in the strike that had idled about a million and a half of the nation's breadwinners.

Boosts Denied By OPS

Coincidental with setting up the peace talks, the Office of Price Stabilization tossed a minor bomb by rejecting appeals of three steel companies for price boosts ranging from $5.50 to $6 a ton.

But the OPS ruling against appeals from Weirton, Armco and Pittsburgh Steel—all operating under new contracts—was quickly shrugged off by the industry.

Steelman spent Saturday talking prices with officials of United States Steel Corp, bellwhether of the industry, and reportedly gave assurance of an increase in steel prices.

The industry pinned its hope for price relief on a promise of

Politics Speeds Up For Primary

(By The Associated Press)

Michigan Republican candidates are in for a busy round of debates and rallies within the next few days as primary time rolls near.

Tonight (Tuesday) four aspirants to the U. S. Senate will hold a panel discussion before the Wayne young Republicans in Detroit.

Representative Charles E. Potter, of Cheboygan, Auditor General John B. Martin Jr., Dr. Eugene C. Keyes, former lieutenant governor and Clifford Prevost, secretary to Detroit Mayor Albert E. Cobo, will take part in the discussion.

Potter, Martin and Prevost have also accepted invitations to address a meeting of the Southwest Michigan Republican Association at Gull Lake next Monday. And Keyes is trying to arrange his schedule so that he too might attend.

Monday night Potter declared at a Detroit rally "If I'm nominated and elected I can promise you a senator that won't be dominated by Walter Reuther."

Four of his colleagues in Congress also addressed the rally. They were Rep. Patrick Hillings (R.-Calif.), Rep. William Ayres (R.-Ohio) and Reps. John Byrnes and Glenn Davis, both Wisconsin Republicans.

Brake Again Running For State Treasurer

LANSING—(AP)—State Treasurer D. Hale Brake announced today that he would seek his sixth consecutive term by asking renomination at the Republican state convention Aug. 16.

Brake issued a terse statement declaring "I am again a candidate for the nomination to the office of state treasurer on the Republican ticket."

There is no opposition in sight and Brake's renomination is considered a cinch by Republican political leaders.

A resident of Stanton, Brake served as prosecutor of Montcalm county from 1937 to 1930, served in the state Senate four terms and was first elected treasurer in 1942. He has been reelected with out a break since.

Warrants Are Asked Against 26 Convicts In Jackson Mutiny

LANSING—(AP)—Attorney General Frank G. Millard today asked warrants against 14 convicts for kidnaping, against six for sodomy and charged three with both crimes in the first report of the six-week investigation of the April riots and mutiny at the Southern Michigan prison.

"It is our opinion that there was no evidence warranting charges of misfeasance, malfeasance or nonfeasance against any duly constituted officer or official of the prison," Millard reported.

Leaders Singled Out

He said a number of other inmates will be charged with kidnaping or sodomy as soon as identification is verified.

Others may eventually be charged with arson and malicious destructtion of property, he said.

The attorney general declared that he had attempted to single out the leaders of the mutiny and riot in which nine guards were seized as hostages.

Some could have been charged with destruction of property or arson, he said, but are being charged with the more serious crimes in order to impose greater penalties.

Warrants will be asked in Jackson county today, he said.

Crazy Jack Named

At Jackson, however, prosecutor George Campbell said he might not see fit to bring charges against all those mentioned by Millard.

Campbell said he would start authorizing the charges today, and would take the prisoners into court at the rate of about two at a time.

He added that he would insist that any new sentences be added to the present ones, instead of running concurrently. Kidnaping carries a mandatory life sentence and sodomy can carry up to a 15-year term.

The list of those accused included such notorious ring leaders as "Crazy Jack" Hyatt and Earl Ward, who conducted the negotiations with state officials for the eventual suppression of the riot.

Peru And Cuba Patch Up Diplomatic Break

LIMA, Peru—(AP)—The Peruvian government today announced the resumption of diplomatic relations with Cuba after a three-year break. The accord was reached with the aid of Brazilian Foreign Minister Joao Neves Da Fontoura, the announcement said.

Cuban-Peruvian relations were broken off in 1949 when some Peruvian political refugees fled abroad after having been given asylum in the Cuban embassy here.

The agreement resuming relations was signed yesterday in Rio de Janeiro, capital of Brazil, by Neves Da Fontoura and the Cuban and Peruvian ambassadors there, the announcement said.

Plane Blasts Street; Only Pilot Killed

ORLANDO, Fla.—(AP)—A T-33 jet trainer plane crashed and exploded in a residential street Monday, blasting a hole 15 feet deep and 20 feet wide.

The pilot, Second Lt. William H. Reeigle, 25, of Bloomsburg, Pa., was killed.

Fifty children were at play in a park only about 200 yards from the crash. A man struck by a flying brick was hospitalized. Several others were slightly injured by pieces of hurtling metal.

Reigle was stationed at Pinecastle Air Force Base near here.

New York Welcomes Ocean Speed Queen

NEW YORK—(AP)—The superliner United States, new queen of the seas, came home today to a roaring reception with another jewel in her crown.

Droning planes zoomed overhead and vessels in the harbor sent up a thunderous chorus of welcoming whistles as the big ship docked at the end of her double speed conquest of the Atlantic.

In Marine Annals, it was a historic homecoming. Twice, on her maiden voyage, the sleek, 53,000-ton liner had far outstripped past ocean-crossing records, both eastbound and westbound.

As the new record-holder tied up at her Hudson river pier at 8:12 a. m. (EST), she was given a noisy demonstration of homage that echoed up and down the waterfront and across the big harbor.

Fireboats spewed sunlit arches of water. Bands blared on deck and ashore. Passengers jammed the decks, waving and shouting.

In setting the new east-west record, the trim, black-hulled United States had covered the 3,000 miles in three days, 12 hours and 12 minutes—nine hours and 36 minutes quicker than ever before.

After laying at anchor overnight in the outer harbor, the new ship began her leisurely glide into port about dawn.

Break In Truce Deadlock Hinted

MUNSAN, Korea — (AP)—Korean armistice negotiations resume tomorrow after a two day recess called suddenly by the Communists in the midst of crucial secret talks on prisoner exchange.

In advance of the 11 a. m. (9 p. m. Tuesday EST) session at Panmunjom, United Nations officials offered no clue as to the significance of the break in discussions.

The U. N. command and Communist truce delegations began secret talks July 4 in an effort to break the deadlock over prisoner exchange.

Big Presidential Contest Full Of Question Marks

By RELMAN MORIN

CHICAGO—(AP)—A great many Democrats were busy talking, tacking up signs, making predictions and generally building up a full head of steam today for the presidential nominating convention that opens next week.

This is a multi-candidate convention, wide as the great open spaces.

Truman Main Factor

Consequently, it is full of question marks, hot and cold running rumors, speculation and bally hoo. The backers of the various aspirants—and one of the candidates, himself—have been discussing the situation, fore and aft since last weekend. But about the only points of agreement are that:

1. Nobody is being to be named on the first ballot, or even on an "early" ballot. Some guesses on roll calls range up to 10.
2. Sen. Estes Kefauver, the tall man from Tennessee, will hop out in front at the start. (But his lieutenants and the supporters of the other men disagree about what will happen after that.)
3. Somebody is going to get a powerful lift from President Trumban and all the candidates are looking hopefully toward the White House for a sign in the sky.

All Confident

If the President has glanced with interest in the direction of any of the several front-runners, there is no indication of it here. The most any of the various camps can announce is that Truman isn't

Fairbanks Hotel Burns; One Dead

FAIRBANKS, Alaska — (AP) — Punctuated by explosive bursts of flame, a fire raced through the old Pioneer Hotel here early yesterday, leveling the three-story structure in two hours and leaving at least one person dead.

Police Chief Floyd Clower listed five persons as missing and said eight were hospitalized with burns. Clower said the toll may go higher as firemen start probing the ashes of the wooden building today.

He pointed out that only 180 of the 250 persons registered at the hotel had reported in to police headquarters 20 hours after the fire had died down, despite urgent radio and newspaper pleas.

He expressed the possibility, however, that many of the more than 50 yet unaccounted for would show up during the day. He said some who escaped the flames may already have left the city.

The one listed victim was identified as Bill Vanderpool, an Alaska freight lines employe who died in a hospital of burns.

Clower said the fire apparently started on the second floor stair landing of this city's second largest—and oldest—hotel and mushroomed rapidly, roaring up the tinder-dry wooden stairs and blocking the third floor exit.

Fires Discussed In Kiwanis Club

Inside information on the workings of the Escanaba fire department, including training of firemen, inspections, and elimination of hazards, was given to members of the Escanaba Kiwanis club Monday in a talk by Capt. Clarence Schrader of the local fire department.

Schrader, who has been with the Escanaba fire department for 18 years, explained how fire insurance rates in a city are improved by increased efficiency in personnel and equipment. He discussed the weekly training schedule carried out for local firemen and announced that a district school, conducted by the University of Michigan extension department, would be held at Escanaba this fall for the training of firemen. Special instruction will be given on inspections and the detecting of arson.

Fake Alarms Costly

First aid calls have become an important item in the work of the fire department, the fire captain said, and all firemen are now trained in the use of artificial respiration and the use of modern new resuscitation equipment.

False alarms are causing a big waste of tax dollars in the fire department, the Kiwanians were told. Of 376 fire calls at Escanaba in 1951, 46 were false alarms, the speaker said, and each time trucks are called out it costs the city about $100. Through cooperation of citizens and close watch the city was able to catch 15 juvenile offenders. This resulted in a sharp drop in false alarms, but the offenses have been breaking out again recently, Capt. Schrader reported.

Plant Tour Next Week

Extension of city steam to business places along Ludington street was credited by the fire captain for helping to bring Escanaba's fire loss down to a very low mark last year. The steam heating extensions eliminated a number of private heating units which had been fire hazards, Schrader explained. He said that new department equipment, enabling men to get close to the source of fire quickly, also helped reduce the property damage from fire, smoke and water.

Next week the Kiwanis club will have their meal slightly earlier to give time for a tour of the Harnischfeger truck crane plant during the noon hour.

Old Fight Revived Among Michigan's Democratic Bosses

By JACK I. GREEN

LANING—(AP)—Michigan Democrats edged out of the wings today toward their share of the national political spotlight — and found an old fight being revived to settle all over again.

The fight was over the selection of a new national committeeman to replace George S. Fitzgerald, Detroit attorney and Teamsters' Union choice four years ago, who has virtually taken a walk from the party in a feud with Governor Williams.

Three In Scrap

As members of the state delegation to next week's national convention assembled in Lansing for a pre-convention caucus, word spread that John P. Murphy Jr., of Saginaw would not be available for the national committee post.

Murphy was the sole choice of Williams, U. S. Senator Blair Moody and State Democratic Chairman Neil Steebler.

His reported withdrawal broke open again the fight between Theodore R. Bohn of Detroit, the CIO candidate, State Boxing Commissioner Floyd Stevens of Grand Rapids, the "regular" candidate, and Ben Levinson, Detroit mortgage broker, fund-raiser extraordinary and Teamsters Union candidate.

Frantic at the prospect over renewal of this scrap, some party leaders proposed that Williams himself take the national committee post to keep the peace. This has not been done in Michigan but in some states the governor sits as national committeeman.

Later reports said "another acceptable candidate" might be unveiled today at the caucus.

Breaks With Williams

The caucus today is supposed to select Michigan representatives on the various national convention committees such as resolutions, credentials, rules, and so forth.

It also may face a decision on how to squeeze 134 delegates and alternates into 88 seats allotted Michigan on the convention floor.

The state convention, contrary to instructions of the national committee, picked 72 delegates and 64 alternates to cast 40 votes. One alternate and one delegate later withdrew.

The caucus may instruct each congressional district to make up its own mind who are the two delegates and who are the two alternates from each district. Some picked as many as four each.

There appeared to be no opposition to the election of Mrs. Margaret Price of Ann Arbor, chairman of the Michigan Youth Commission, as national committeewoman to replace Mrs. Minnie Schwinger of Saginaw, who also has broken with the Williams administration.

Both the national committeeman and committeewoman probably will be elected at a caucus of the delegation in Chicago next Sunday night.

Rotary Visits Camp Harstad

Escanaba Rotarians visited the crippled and handicapped children encampment at Camp Harstad on the south bay shore near Ford River, saw 35 children at play and work, heard an explanation of the summer program and enjoyed a lunch prepared by Mrs. Ethyl Hennessey at their regular meeting yesterday.

The visit to Camp Harstad, sponsored by the Rotary club and named after Ole Harstad, of Bark River, who provided the beautiful lake shore site, is an annual occasion for members and guests of the club. The camp this summer is directed by Henry Wylie, of the Escanaba Senior High school faculty.

Guests introduced yesterday were William Warmington, perennial chairman of the local Easter Seal crippled children fund drive; Lawrence Viau and Robert MacDonald representing Local No. 110 of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers, donor of a hospital bed for the camp, and Mr. Harstad. The program was conducted by John A. Lemmer, superintendent of Escanaba public schools.

A feature of the informal program were short talks by Wylie and the Misses Maxine Berntsen, junior counselor, and Betty Pearson, arts and craft director.

Miss Berntsen, a former camper and now a counselor, expressed the thanks of all the counselors for making the camp possible, and Miss Pearson, camp occupational therapist, described the benefits for the children and progress many of the youngsters have made since the camp opened three weeks ago.

A graduate of Michigan State Normal at Ypsilanti and preparing to serve the St. Paul, Minn., public schools in orthopedic work, Miss Pearson said:

"I became interested in orthopedic teaching through my contact with Camp Harstad, and I want to thank you."

"We encourage visitors to the camp," Wylie said. "Anyone who visits the camp will appreciate more what is being done for the children."

Each Rotarian and guest returned from the camp with a favor made by the children in their arts and craft class.

City Planners Meet Tonight

The city planning commission will meet this evening at 7:30 o'clock at the council chambers in the city hall.

Scheduled for action at the meeting this evening is a review of recommendations for a new trailer ordinance. The zoning committee of the commission made a study of the problem and prepared a report for the full commission.

A proposed plat for the area between 19th and 23rd Streets and Fifth to Eighth Avenues also will be reviewed by the planning commission this evening. This area is now in acreage and contains the St. Ann church development.

Creosoted pieces of lumber now can be glued together to form heavy structural timbers by a new method. Until this method was developed it was thought impossible to glue creosoted wood.

Record Cut In Federal Forest

Twenty five million feet of timber was cut in the Upper Michigan National Forest during the fiscal year ending last July 1, it was reported here yesterday by C. L. Harrison, of Escanaba, who is supervisor of the forest for the U. S. Forest Service.

"This is a new record exceeding the 16 million-foot cut in the fiscal year ending July 1, 1951," Harrison said. "The amount cut during the past year is valued at $225,000."

Eighty per cent of it is pulpwood and the remainder is hardwood saw logs. Sixty per cent of it was taken from the Hiawatha National Forest and 40 per cent from the Marquette National Forest, both part of the Upper Mcihigan forest.

"Getting this timber to market s a major problem," Harrison pointed out, reporting that Herbert Hinsch and John H. von Bergen, of the U. S. Forest Service's regional office in Milwaukee are here this week to make a study of what roads are needed to solve the ransportation problem.

"It is the loggers' responsibility o get the timber to market," he aid, "but, of course, we are diectly concerned in providing an utlet for this product. The loggers nove the logs by trucks, and in nany cases it is a very difficult roposition, particularly in view f the fact that the Upper Michian National Forest produced 25 nillion feet compared with 16 milion for the preceding year."

Harrison said the program is eared for 30 million feet during he current fiscal year but whethr sufficient money is appropried for that much production remains to be seen.

"We are prepared to cut and andle that much timber this year we are financially able to operte on that large a scale," he comented.

Hinsch and von Bergen arrived unday night and will remain in e area all this week to make a mplete study of the transportaon problem.

Michigan's Air Watch Is Flop

GRAND RAPIDS—(AP)—Ground observation for potential enemy bombers was a feeble gesture Monday as Michigan went on a 24-hour permanent watch of the skies.

Too few volunteers to man observation posts and chart the flight of planes over the state was responsible for the dismal showing, officers in charge reported.

Maj. Louie P. Blanchet of the Grand Rapids filter center cited this example. A plane entered Michigan in the Little Traverse Bay area near Petoskey. It could have traveled as far as Mt. Pleasant in Central Michigan without having been reported again.

Approximately 130 ground observation posts out of a potential 439 in the state were manned at one time or another. At the Grand Rapids Filter Center three and four persons were on duty to do the work of 30 on occasions.

The work of volunteers who did serve was called "heartening" by Mrs. Hamer P. Ford, administrative supervisor here. But she pointed out that tracking planes across the state was virtually impossible with so few workers on duty.

During the day the Center averaged 60 calls an hour. In most instances, however, the reports were so scattered that even though the Filter Center knew a plane had entered Michigan there was no way of plotting its course.

The problem was highlighted at Petoskey where Robert McMaster, director of air spotters, announced that the observation program was being abandoned. He said he could not ask few spotters to continue on the job indefinitely.

"Since local people don't seem to be interested we just won't take part any longer," he said.

Michigan joined 26 other states Monday in a 24-hour permanent alert designed to aid radar networks in guarding against surprise enemy attack.

Sen. Brooks Says Ike Will Carry Illinois

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

CHICAGO— (AP) —Former U. S. Senator C. Wayland Brooks told Dwight D. Eisenhower Monday that the general will carry Illinois in the November presidential election even if the Democrats draft Gov. Adlai Stevenson to head their ticket.

Brooks, Republican national committeeman from Illinois, conferred with Eisenhower—the GOP presidential nominee—at the general's Blackstone hotel headquarters.

Defeat Predicted

After the conference, Brooks told newsmen he had come in to discuss "the Illinois situation" with Eisenhower.

Brooks noted that the 60-vote Illinois delegation to last week's Republican convention had lined up 59 for Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio and 1 for Eisenhower.

Brooks said that despite that situation, Illinois party workers will give Eisenhower wholehearted support.

"We will abide by the convention's decision," he added.

Before seeing Eisenhower, Brooks said that if Stevenson is not drafted by the Democrats, he will be defeated by the Republicans in his bid for reelection as governor.

Stevenson has left the door open for a presidential draft, but has insisted repeatedly that he is interested only in re-election as governor.

Brooks said Stevenson could not be re-elected "because of his administration of affairs over the state and his apparent inability to choose people who will not allow such things as the horse meat scandal and the cigarette tax scandal."

The former senator was referring to recent disclosures of widespread adulteration of beef with horse meat in Illinois, and to other disclosures of counterfeiting of state cigarette tax stamps. Each scandal resulted in numerous prosecutions by state and local authorities.

Boy Meets Candidate

Before Brooks arrived, Eisenhower had breakfast with Chicago police sergeant Robert C. Schmidt, who has been in charged of Eisenhower's motorcycle escort here, and Schmid's 16-year-old nephew, Maurice Houghland of Chicago.

The breakfast was arranged after Schmidt had remarked to one of the general's bodyguards that young Houghland was much interested in Eisenhower.

The general then suggested that both Schmidt and Houghland be invited to breakfast with him, and they were.

Fleet Blessing Will Be Sunday

Final plans are being made this week for the Blessing of the Fleet to be held in Fayette on July 20. The day's festivities will begin with an outdoor mass celebrated at the Fatima Grotto at 11:00 a. m. The St. Mary Seminary choir of Techny, Illinois will sing and the Fourth Degree drill team of the Escanaba Knights of Columbus will assist under the command of Clinton Gross.

A commentary on the mass will be given over the amplifier by the Rev. S. Patrick Wisneske of St. Thomas the Apostle church, Escanaba. After the morning services, dinner will be served to the public in a quaint setting near the harbor. The serving will begin at noon.

The Blessing of the Fleet will begin with a concert by the Manistique Municipal Band. The color guard of the American Legion, Garden Post will present the colors after Bishop Noa has arrived. This year the entire blessing will take place from a flotilla anchored in the middle of the harbor. Although the ritual of the blessing is in Latin, an English translation will be read.

The Blessing of the Fleet will conclude the Regional Conference of the National Laywomen's Retreat Movement to be held in Escanaba this week.

County Chest Meets July 31

Representatives of welfare agencies interested in joining the Delta County Community Chest for the annual drive this October and November are invited to attend the Chest meeting to be held Thursday, July 31.

Six agencies now in the Chest are the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Campfire Girls, Michigan Children's Aid, Salvation Army and Cod Liver Oil Fund. Their programs this year are financed by funds procured in the drive last fall and early winter. Against a goal of $20,000, approximately $22,500 was raised.

Chest officials have expressed the hope that more agencies will join the Chest to make it more all-inclusive. The goal of the Chest organization is to have the Community Chest represent all agencies dealing in health, welfare, recreation or relief of any sort so that only one campaign a year for such funds will be necessary.

Budgets for 1953 must be submitted to the Chest board of directors by August 15 so it is important that other agencies send representatives to the Chest board meeting July 31. The session will be held in the office of N. P. Chapekis, 710½ Ludington street, who was chairman of the successful 1951 campaign.

Andrew Houston, Boy Scout executive in this area, will explain the Boy Scout program and tell how its funds derived from the Community Chest are spent each year.

Democratic Nominee Will Be President Truman's Selection

THE man selected as the Democratic presidential nominee in the Democratic convention at Chicago next week will be the man that President Truman decides to pick for the appointment. It is unlikely that the nominee will be Sen. Estes Kefauver who aroused the President's ire by defeating Mr. Truman in the New Hampshire primary last spring.

It is beginning to look more and more that the convention choice will be Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, despite Stevenson's oft - repeated statement that he does not want the nomination. The Illinois governor indicated that he was wavering, if, in fact, he has not been playing coy all the time, when he told a Minnesota delegate at Camp Ripley Sunday that "No politician can say that he would refuse a draft."

There are really only two front runners for the nomination—Stevenson and W. Averell Harriman, director of the Mutual Security Administration. These are the men who stand the best chance of getting the backing of President Truman and, of course, without the President's backing, an aspirant for the Democratic nomination has virtually no prospects at the Chicago convention.

Harriman is an avowed and active candidate for the nomination as are Senator Kefauver of Tennessee, Senator Kerr of Oklahoma and Vice President Barkley. Except for his age, which rules him out of serious contention, Barkley would have the inside track. Both Senator Russell and Senator Kerr are not likely to get far in the race because, among other unfavorable factors, they are unacceptable to the CIO, the big labor organization which wields plenty of power in Democratic ranks.

Governor Williams of our own state is not an active candidate for the presidential nominee but Williams would be receptive to a vice presidential nomination offer. Of course, if Stevenson becomes the presidential nominee, Williams probably would not be seriously considered as a running mate because both are midwesterners.

President Truman has already served notice that he will not permit any deviation at the Chicago convention from the so-called Fair Deal party platform. The Democrats will have to rise or fall on the Truman program.

We Must Respect Sanctity Of Contract

FOR a while there was great to-do over the fact that Denmark was delivering a 13,000-ton tanker to Russia, a business transaction that provoked Washington to warn that U. S. military and economic aid might be withdrawn if the Danes went through with the deal.

Now that the tanker has been delivered, after after all, and Washington's protest has faded to a faint muttering, like a passing thunderstorm, it turns out that Denmark was living up to a contract made with Russia long before the U. S. imposed a ban on the export of strategic materials to Iron Curtain countries.

Nobody in the Western world likes to see Russia being supplied with anything that is embraced by the term strategic. But Italy and The Netherlands have been shipping materials behind the Iron Curtain, too, without feeling any pinch on their aid from the United States.

Like Italy and The Netherlands, Denmark has to do business with somebody to keep alive. She can't swap her copious food products with England for coal, because England hasn't the coal to spare.

She can't export cheese to America any more—although cheese has been one of Denmark's biggest dollar trade items—because we've built a new tariff wall on foreign cheese.

Maybe the answer would be to find a way for Denmark to do more business with the West. After all, it's a little hard to condemn the Danes for living up to the sanctity of a contract, particularly in an age when a broken promise seems to be the rule rather than the exception.

Timber Production Is On The Increase

YOU have probably heard it said many times that the Upper Peninsula's timber supply is rapidly dwindling and that the days when forest products are a major source of revenue for the economic sustenance of the area are numbered.

It is too early to count the Upper Peninsula out as a source of timber products, however. On the contrary, timber production is on the upswing and with the increase in selective logging and prudent management of our timber areas, the pendulum is swinging to sustained yields.

C. L. Harrison, supervisor of the U. S. Forest Service here, has reported that the timber cut in the Hiawatha and Marquette National Forests last year was 25,000,000 feet, of which 20% was in saw logs and the remainder in pulpwood.

Of particular encouragement is the way in which owners of private timber acreage are developing sustained yield programs, following the example of the U. S. Forest Service. Paper companies and lumber companies are managing their timber holdings with efficiency and common sense to provide a constant supply of timber products.

The cut of 25 million feet of timber in the Upper Michigan National Forests last year represents an increase of better than 50% over the preceding year when 16 million feet of timber was taken from the National Forests. This figure alone shows that we are making good headway in forest management.

CONGRESSMEN'S TAXES
(Milwaukee Sentinel)

In a benign spirit, Congress has decided that congressmen are entitled to some relief from the high cost of living.

And, accordingly, Senate-House conferees have agreed to allow all members of Congress to exempt the first $3,000 of their Washington living expenses from income taxes President Truman has signed the bill.

Would it be too much to hope that Congress, at some not too distant date, will show the same degree of magnanimity to the rest of us taxpayers, who do not have official expense accounts and are equally pinched by spiraling prices?

The high cost of living is no respector of persons.

Questions and Answers

Q—What is the origin of Groundhog Day?

A—Its origin is lost in antiquity. Feb. 2 is Candlemas Day, and it was a festival in early Christian times. In some parts of Europe animals do not enter into the weather prediction; in other sections the bear or the badger or the hedgehog are supposed to emerge from their hibernation like the groundhog or woodchuck in this country.

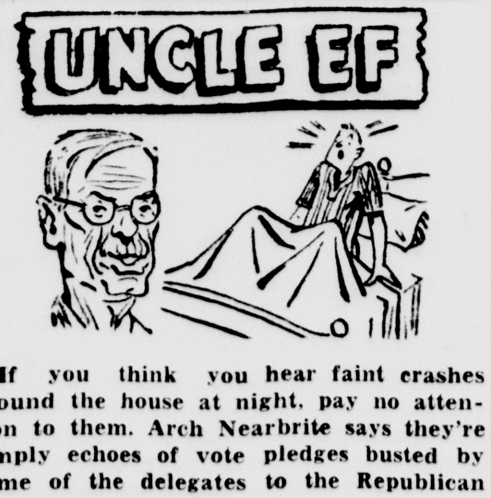
Q—When was mahogany first used as building material?

A—The earliest known use of mahogany in buildings was in the Cathedral of Santo Domingo, completed in 1550.



If you think you hear faint crashes around the house at night, pay no attention to them. Arch Nearbrite says they're simply echoes of vote pledges busted by some of the delegates to the Republican Convention last week.

Polio's Crippling Effects Cut By Proper, Early Treatment

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D. — Written for NEA Service

It isn't always easy to identify polio early and yet this is one of the most important things to do if treatment is to be as effective as present methods permit.

One reason for this is that the early signs of polio are almost exactly the same as those of many other acute infectious or virus diseases.

Actually it is stated, probably correctly, that when the nervous signs of polio become evident, the disease has already existed for several days.

Furthermore, no two patients with the disease show exactly the same symptoms. As a result, even when a definite diagnosis has been made, skilled judgment and experience are necessary in order to choose those methods of treatment best suited to that particular patient.

It should be said also that good care by the physician is not the only important aspect of treatment. There are few diseases in which good nursing and physical therapy are as important in getting good results as in polio.

The muscular paralysis which comes on after the first few days of the disease is accompanied by painful muscle spasms These can be greatly relieved by hot wet packs, properly applied, and by nursing care. The skin tenderness which is so common is also helped by such treatments.

At the time when the disease is acute every effort has to be made to keep the muscles in the best possible condition so that they will respond to the later treatments and training. Bed rest is, needless to say, important as are the other measures like plenty of fluids, which are used for any infectious disease.

FUND EQUIPS HOSPITALS

Many hospitals are now well equipped to handle patients with polio. Much of this has been made possible by the funds made available to them through the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, to which so many generous-hearted citizens throughout the country have contributed.

Thanks to this every victim of polio who needs hospital or other care for polio need not lack it because of financial reasons.

Medical science is constantly searching for new methods of treatment. Several drugs are used for certain aspects of the disease with moderate success. Although a sure cure for all victims of the disease has not been discovered, proper treatment given early enough eases pain and lessens the chances of crippling complications.

Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Congress was in such a hurry to pack up and go to the conventions that legislation was ground out in wholesale lots without investigation or debate. Most senators and congressmen had no idea what they were voting on. As a result several sleepers slipped through, as follows:

TAX GRAVY

Senator George of Georgia introduced a complicated amendment to the excess-profits tax supposed to adjust the rates for fabricators of strategic metals. Significantly, however, the amendment was tailor-made to reduce the taxes of one brass company of Bridgeport, Conn., whose owner happens to be Herman Steinkraus, outgoing president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. George has long been close to Ellsworth Alvord, tax adviser of the Chamber of Commerce.

CLAIMS GRAVY

Congressman Beall of Maryland tried to slip through a bill, authorizing the Willmore Engineering Company of Baltimore to collect a $244,000 claim. It so happens that the claim had already been turned down by the Court of Claims and the U. S. District Court. In fact, the claim was so fantastic that the courts ordered the FBI to investigate the Wellmore company for alleged fraud. Yet Congressman Beall tried to get Congress to pay the claim that the FBI is now investigating as fraudulent. Fortunately he failed.

AIRLINE GRAVY

The big airlines almost booby trapped the small airlines with a bill that would have put them out of business. It would have allowed the Civil Aeronautics Board to slap $1,000 fines on the small, unscheduled lines for minor infractions of rules.

For five years, the C. A. B. has faithfully followed big airlines pressure in trying to squeeze small lines out of business But the courts have consistently stuck up for the little airlines. The new bill would have circumvented the courts, and allowed the C. A. B. to fine the little lines.

The bill was drafted by Ed Sweeney, well known as the big airlines' friend on the Senate aviation subcommittee staff. In order to fool the senators, Sweeney prepared a report declaring that the comptroller-general and attorney general were in favor of the bill. This was not true. In the end, Senator Sparkman exposed the sleeper and blocked it on the Senate floor.

TAX PLUMS

Senator Martin of Pennsylvania pushed through a tax amendment made to order for two companies—the Budd Company of Philadelphia and the Sangawo Electric Company of Springfield, Illinois.

All these bills were introduced the last minute without a hearing—in the hope that they would be overlooked an denacted into law in the smoke and confusion of Congress' last days.

PAY-TOILETS LOBBY

One bill which didn't quite sneak through was the amendment to benefit the Pennsylvania Railroad and increase its pay-toilets charge from five to ten cents despite an OPS price ceiling. The man who pulled wires to pass this amendment was none other than President Truman's former counsel, Clark Clifford, and the senator who went to bat for the pay toilets was Allan Frear of Delaware. Though the railroad pushed through its pay-toilet hike, it also wanted exemption from the $285,000 triple damage suit brought against it by OPS for violating price ceilings on pay toilets. This suit was also introduced by "Pay Toilets" Frear. However, though Congress agreed to dime toilets it refused to knock out the law suit. Unlike the Pennsylvania, the New York Central had increased pay toilets to ten cents in the Grand Central station prior to the OPS ruling, but reduced the rate after the ruling was made.

G. I. BONUS

In contrast to the way private bills benefiting a few people were sneaked through Congress, here is the story of a tough, 2-year-battle to secure a combat bonus for G. I.'s in Korea.

Almost two years ago, September 1950, this columnist pointed to the unfairness of a service pay system which gave extra risk bonuses to pilots and submarine crews but none to the boys in the foxholes. Senator Tom Connally of Texas took up the cudgels by inserting the column in the Congressional Record, following which Senator Dick Russell of Georgia introduced a bill giving a $50-a-month combat bonus. Russell did his best to push the bill, but was finally defeated in his own Armed Services Committee.

At this point, three young senators took up the cudgels for the G. I.'s — Moody of Michigan, Long of Louisiana, and Monroney of Oklahoma, all Democrats. Moody led a successful fight to get a $45 a month combat bonus approved by Congress.

New Weapons Strengthen U. S. Defenses Against Aggression

ON PROVING GROUNDS, Army's new Patton 48 medium tank climbs over three-foot wall with ease.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.—(NEA)—The USS Tang is a sleek, ultra-modern submarine that can dive deeper, remain submerged longer, travel faster and fight better than any other underseas craft in the world.

That's how the Navy proudly describes the latest addition to Americas formidable submarine fleet.

Built at the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard as the first of a new class, the USS Tang is the namesake of a submarine which blazed a spectacular combat record during World War II. The new Tang has greater maneuverability, more endurance and can travel faster underwater than on the surface.

The Tang's Snorkel "breathing device," developed by the Germans during the last war and later perfected by the U. S., enables it to remain underwater for lengthy periods while recharging its batteries.

* * *

Armed with an extensive variety of super-secret electronic devices, the Tang is 268 feet in length, shorter than any of her war-time predecessors and carries a crew of seven officers and 75 enlisted men.

It was designed as a fast-attack submarine. It has a streamlined hull and reduced superstructure to enable it to dart more swiftly through the water than any other American sub ever built. The Tang's primary purpose will be offensive action against enemy surface and underwater craft.

Diving in the Tang is like being in a room without windows. Unless someone told you the sub's location, you'd have no idea you were far below the surface.

There is no trouble breathing, no pressure, only the sound of water flooding the ballast tanks and Navy gibberish over the loudspeakers.

As an example of the vessel's maneuverability, the Tang raced ahead at full speed along the surface. Suddenly, the skipper, Comdr. Enders P. Huey, called for a quick reversal. Within one minute, the Tang was "dead in the water," prepared to travel in any direction.

* * *

One of the outstanding features of the new submarine is its compactness. There are men everywhere—bending, stooping, crawling all over each other. Everybody has a guage to watch, a lever to pull, a valve to turn or an order to give. Confusion to the landlubber, but efficiency to the submariner. The Tang ticks like a clock.

Each piece of equipment, from the radial-type Diesel engines to the shiny coffee percolators, was designed especially for the Tang-class submarine which is roomier than any of the older-type subs, despite its smaller size.

Ask any man aboard the Tang how he feels about his ship, and he'll tell you she's the best. But you don't have to ask the stocky, red-haired Huey—he leaps at every chance to tell you she's "real hot."

He doesn't mean the temperature (the Tang has the latest air-conditioning) but he means that his pride and joy has more power, more endurance, greater maneuverability and dives deeper than any other American submarine.

America's tank program since the Korean War started comes closer to meeting original goals than any other major part of the big armament buildup.

Revelation by the Army here that mass production is now under way in the Chrysler Delaware plant on the brand new medium Patton T-48 climaxes this program. The new Patton's revolutionary features are also expected to put U. S. ground forces in front of other nations in quality tanks for the first time.

In a few months a total of five major tank plants will be in operation in the country. And the most significant aspect of the whole program is that these new plants will be capable of increasing output many times in case of the need for total mobilization. Creation of such reserve facilities is the essence of the present overall buildup of the services.

Cooperation of the big automobile firms with Army Ordnance engineers has been a big factor in making all of this possible.

* * *

Chrysler started from scratch after the Korean outbreak to aid the new medium T-48. And details of a new heavy, the T-43, will soon be revealed. It will also be produced in this new plant.

In Cleveland, O., the Cadillac company has been turning out the fighter Walker Bulldogs in great numbers for many months. And the Ford and Fisher Body plants have been contributing to the general program by turning out hulls and turrets in mass production.

As soon as construction of the new Pattons increases, work on the interim T-47 will be halted. The T-47 is a makeshift combination of improved turret and hull, which the Army started producing in its Detroit Arsenal plant soon after the Korean war started.

The T-47 was a gamble that paid off. It is better than anything the Army had during World War II but falls far short of the new Patton's performance. However, it did give the Army an improved tank when it was badly needed.

U. S. tanks have been consistently inferior to Russian and German tanks in several respects. They didn't have big enough cannons. Their armor plating wasn't thick enough. And they were too tall, making too easy a target.

However, U. S. tanks have always been superior in speed and maneuverability. And the T-48, in an amazing demonstration of its abilities, proved that those advantages have been retained, plus adding the other features.

It weighs between 45 and 50 tons. Speed is a secret but it goes fast and travels on an especially wide track which makes it good for swampy or wet ground.

The turret, which turns completely around fast and easily, is cast in one piece. That, and the one-piece cast hull are unique in the T-48.

* * *

Special equipment also keeps the big gun trained on the target, once aimed, in spite of rough terrain it might be moving over. The high velocity 90 mm. cannon is designed with an easily replaceable lining which can be changed in the field.

An improved 50 caliber machine gun mounted on top is designed for reloading and firing without the gunner being exposed.

Its designers boast that you can't lay a foot-rule flat anywhere on the hull or turret. This curving surface deflects shells which are fired at it.

Inside, it is roomy and comfortable, and automatic driving mechanisms make it extremely easy to handle on any kind of road or terrain.

These general, improved features are being incorporated in most of the new family of tanks being produced.

Good Evening . . .

NEW YORK—The choice of young Dick Nixon as the other half of the Eiesnhower presidential team seemed in many respects to be as happy a political event as has come down the pike in recent years. Apart from being personable, able and young, he spots a fresh trend.

It has always been my opinion that your Vice President is equally as important as your President, since a heart attack or an assassin's bullet or a plane crash can transform your VP into the head man. Yet we have treated the job as a sort of hearty joke for many a year.

It has been used as a reward for faithful party hacks such as Alben Barkley and it has been the plum of pets such as Henry Wallace. It has been the seat of compromise in rugged disagreement, as in the case of Harry Truman's surprise nomination when the bosses wouldn't hold still for another four years of nature boy as Roosevelt's second man. In actual duties the Vice Presidency has been a baby kissing—contest judging—secondary speech-making job, with not much real work or significance, except in case of sudden death which plummets the VP into the breach when he's had very little practice at the top chores.

A YOUNG MAN

I believe Nixon will be a strong arm for Eisenhower, an excellent chief of staff, say, because Ike's top talent is organization and administration. What I particularly like is that neither of these men is a long-time professional party politico, and as such is unridden by the old-fashioned tribal customs of the machine politician. A new day in government may be at hand.

The chief reason I'm tickled over Nixon's choice is that he is a man of my generation, which is to say men who touched maturity in the last war and in the postwar period. They are not concerned with the good old days because they don't recall the good old days. They were educated in a depression. Their careers were interrupted by a war, and their postwar was cursed by inflation, corruption, inefficiency and the threat of a new war and sudden extinction via the atom.

ETHICS ARE CHANGING

Political ethics are changing, it seems to me. The Taft outfit's attempted theft of the Texas delegates was perfect politics—for Taft's generation. As it turned out, this was the stroke which actually licked him. Most opinion is that if it hadn't been for the fight he lost in Chicago over the handful of delegates, he would have walked into an easy nomination.

Ike's conduct since he came back has broken most of the old-fashioned rules, because politically Eisenhower was born yesterday. Up until this year, it was not even known which party he belonged to, so you can call him a man of this generation insofar as his awareness of the moment is concerned. With Nixon behind him, we finally have an entry which comes about on modern merit. Nixon was the lad who put the finger on Alger Hiss and whose congressional experience is all postwar. They cannot possibly be as beholdened for private favor and personal indebtedness as men who have made life-long careers of politics with their loyalties vested in another, simpler generation. It is of course true that the Messrs. Ike and Dick are not home yet, since there is a slight matter of a national election slated for fall. But I think they will be. I think the people want some fresh blood in office, untainted by a lifetime of political favor-swapping and political obligation.

Power With Words

QUESTIONS THE READERS ASK

Green Bay, Wis.—"In the following sentence is promiscuous used correctly: 'We have promiscuous programs at our club meetings'?"—Mrs. B. E. G.

Answer.—If you mean that the club programs are composed of an unrelated medley of items, it is entirely correct to say, "We have promiscuous programs at our club meetings."

* * *

Beaumont, Tex.—"Is there ever any occasion when you all is grammatically correct?"—R. H. M.

Answer.—When one individual is addressed, you all is generally in correctly used. But an exception may be taken when the speaker means "You in your entirety"; not merely the face or head, but wholly—front, back and sides. Obviously such an exception is rare. But when a group of individuals is addressed, you all is entirely defensible and grammatically correct in many constructions. For example, to quote Shakespeare, "You all did see that on the Lupercal, I thrice presented him a kingly crown."

* * *

Redlands, Calif.—"Constantly we read of a hundred generations in the past, or the like. Does generation in this sense mean any certain definite number of years?"—F. N. B.

Answer—A generation is commonly taken to be one-third of a century, or 30 to 35 years. Accordingly, a hundred generations would mean a period of time estimated at 3,000 to 3,500 years.

* * *

Mt. Vernon, N. Y. — "I should like to know the origin of the expression, by and large."—K. M.

Answer.—This was originally a nautical expression meaning alternately well up to and off from the wind. Such a course necessarily took in a fairly wide area, and it is therefore assumed that the later meanings, "comprehensively; in all respects; broadly," were extensions.

Eisenhower Surprised When He Was Picked To Head Invasion

(This is final article in a series on Gen. Eisenhower, the Republican nominee for President of the United States.)

By WADE JONES
NEA Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO—(NEA)—Shortly after World War I, Eisenhower was ordered to a tour of duty in the Canal Zone and there, on a second story screen porch which he called his war room, he got a lesson on things to come which he never forgot and which must have accounted largely for his future enthusiasm for the military.

His commanding officer, Gen. Fox Conner, startled young Ike with the pronouncement that World War I had solved nothing.

Conner was vehement as he urged Ike to prepare himself for what was to come.

"I mean you in particular," he suddenly shouted. "I've worked with you for two years now. I know that fine brain of yours, its skill and foresight, and the drive of your energy. Men will always follow you because they like you and put their trust in you. Those qualities will be wanted sometime, desperately. The moment you leave here, get to Leavenworth. You must qualify at the General Staff School."

Thanks to Conner, Ike did get to the General Staff School and came out the top man in his class. That was in 1926 and he was a major.

• • •

In 1932, he was serving with Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, during the Washington bonus army march. He became MacArthur's aide a year later, and from 1935 to late 1939 was MacArthur's right hand man in the Philippines. It was there he learned to fly a plane and picked up 300 flying hours.

Five days after Pearl Harbor, Ike was on his way from Fort Sam Houston, Tex., to Washington, over the long road that was to lead to the heart of a smashed and defeated Germany.

In February, 1942, he was made assistant chief of staff in charge of war plans, and the next month be made major general. In May of that year Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, sent Ike on an inspection trip to England.

• • •

Later, upon his return to the Pentagon, Gen. Marshall had him in for a long conference and discussed the African plan in detail.

Finally Marshall asked, "In your opinion, are the plans as nearly complete as we can make them?"

HIGH LEVEL: Ike talks with President Roosevelt in plane over Mediterranean just before Ike became Normandy invasion boss.

"Yes, sir," Ike replied. "I consider them excellent."

"That's lucky," said Marshall with a twinkle in his eye. "Because you're going to carry them out."

The North African campaign resulted in a tremendous victory with a total of 252,415 German and Italian prisoners taken in the final days south of Tunis.

• • •

With the Sicily invasion out of the way, and the Italian campaign well started, Ike met President Franklin D. Roosevelt in Africa as the latter was returning from the Teheran conference.

"You'd better pack your duds," Roosevelt casually told him. "You're going to London." And that was the first Ike knew he and not General Marshall was to command the big show, the Normandy invasion.

As Supreme Allied Commander in Europe, Ike gave the signal for D-Day on June 6, 1944. His role in the titanic battles and ultimate victory that followed are well known.

However, there occurred at the end of the war a little-known incident which again illustrates sharply the qualities of mind of the citizen-soldier.

Ike, victorious commander of all the western forces allied against Germany, sat in a schoolhouse at Reims, France, in his moment of supreme triumph as a soldier. He was accepting the surrender of Germany.

• • •

Colonel General Alfred Jodl, German chief of staff, signed the papers, and with the other German officers was led out of the room.

For minutes that seemed endless Eisenhower sat and stared straight ahead. His face seemed carved in granite. Finally, he snapped out of it, turned on his boyish grin, and the spell was broken.

What was he thinking about? Of armies, of guns, of personal or Allied triumph? None of these.

He was saying to himself, "This Jodl looks like an intelligent man. Yet how could an intelligent man have sold himself out to that crackpot Hitler and helped to murder 15 million people?" Ike told that to a reporter several years later.

After the war, Ike came home to serve as U.S. chief of staff until 1948, when he became president of Columbia University. But at President Truman's request he returned to military service in December, 1950, to head the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Europe.

He returned to this country last June 1 to campaign for the Republican presidential nomination. Many people honestly question whether a general should ever become President. To which Ike's admirers reply, "But is this guy really a general, in any but the strictest meaning of the word?"

Movie Film Explodes, Blows Up Warehouse At Northville, Mich.

NORTHVILLE, Mich. — (AP) — A ball of flame set off by an explosion in a movie film warehouse ripped through the roof and shot 100 feet into the air Sunday night.

Firemen fought more than four hours to get the blaze under control in the storage warehouse seven miles west of here in Washtenaw country.

Only the brick walls of the two-story building were left standing. The building was owned by a distributor of movie film to Detroit suburbs. Traffic was detoured for three miles around the fire scene.

Forest Fire Losses Higher In Michigan

LANSING— Largest loss since early May, 40 forest fires burning 136 acres, jumps the year's toll to 853 fires and 5,198 acres damage, according to the conservation department's latest weekly report.

Last year, Michigan had a record low 669 fires which were held to 4,495 acres damage.

Fourteen of the latest fires were in the six-county Gladwin district, making the area total of 125 fires, more than in any of the other 11 districts in the state. Showing the best mark is the four-county Newberry district with only 25 fires, followed closely by the five-county Baraga district with 26 blazes.

5 Injured In 2 Traffic Mishaps

Two traffic mishaps caused by cars colliding with vehicles halted at stop lights on Ludington Street brought minor injuries to five persons last night and early this morning.

One of the injured parties, Andrew Lindquist, 58, of 223 N. 18th St., was admitted to St. Francis Hospital this morning with a minor neck fracture received when his car was struck in the rear by another as he was awaiting a light change at the intersection of Ludington and 11th Streets.

A slight injury was received in the same accident by the driver of the other car, Lloyd Flath of Escanaba, Rte. 1. He sustained a cut on the inside of the mouth. City police ticketed him for failure to stop in the assured clear distance ahead.

The accident occurred at 10:30 p. m. Monday.

In the other mishap, Sam Zappia of 1405 Washington Ave. received bruised legs and William and Howard Visnaw of Wells suffered minor bruises. None of the parties was hospitalized.

In that accident police reported that car driven by William Visnaw approached the stop light at 23rd and Ludington Streets at about 3:15 a. m. today where two cars were halted, struck the hindmost car and sent both of them about 70 feet into the middle of the intersection.

Police apprehended Visnaw beyond the scene of the accident and held him overnight in the city jail pending investigation.

He plead guilty in Justice Oliver Estenson's court in Gladstone this morning to the charge of reckless driving and was ordered to pay a fine of $25 and $8.35 costs or serve 15 days in jail.

He was completing arrangements to pay the fine.

Steel Stocks Freed By Government To Aid Small Industry

WASHINGTON — (AP) — In a move aimed at checking the spread of industrial idleness, the government today freed for civilian use all steel not needed by the military.

Production Chief Henry H. Fowler said the action clears the way for small and medium-sized manufacturers to keep producing such goods as washing machines, vacuum cleaners, metal furniture and household appliances.

Steel stocks needed for the defense effort, however, remain subject to the embargo imposed on the eve of the steel strike that began June 1.

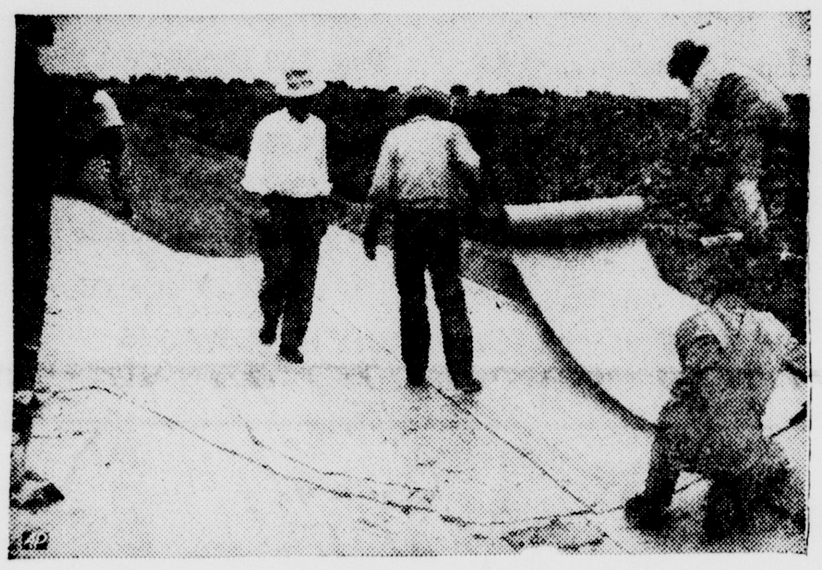
Waterproof Canals Save Money In West

AP Newsfeatures

LOW COST canal linings in Federal Reclamation projects have saved more than five million dollars in water in the west. So the Bureau of Reclamation has published a booklet on "Canal Linings and Methods." It is available from the Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C., for 25 cents. It says water lost on 46 federal projects would have irrigated an additional million acres of land.

A PLOW-TYPE ditch-digger prepares the canal for lining.

SHOTCRETE, a concrete mixture blown on with air pressure provides a smooth floor in the canals.



STRIPS of fiber glass are laid like carpets and an asphalt membrane is created by spraying with a hot solution.

Skyrocket Research Plane Flies Twice The Speed Of Sound

By VERN HAUGLAND

MOFFETT FIELD, Calif. — (AP) —An apparently inadvertent disclosure that the skyrocket research airplane has flown twice the speed of sound was confirmed here today.

It also was indicated that the skyrocket carries refrigeration equipment enough to cool a theater of 3,000 seats.

This would be necessary—in an airplane flying more than 1,300 miles an hour—in order to keep the pilot from being roasted alive, and to keep the airplane metal from turning soft.

The Navy has announced officially only that Douglas test pilot Bill Bridgeman flew its D558-II skyrocket faster and higher than any other piloted aircraft has travelled.

The details were kept secret. The new world speed and altitude records were set over the Mojave desert near Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., last August.

At an air show at Edwards last Saturday, however, an announcer said the skyrocket had flown more than 1,300 miles an hour.

A fellow officer said later that the announcer had been authorized only to say that the plane was capable of that speed.

Officials of the National Advisory committee for aeronautics, here for the biennial inspection of NCAA's aeronautical laboratory, said the disclosure of the speed was correct.

The altitude mark—"more than 79,000 feet"—was in an article in the aviation trade magazine Pegasus a month ago.

The skyrocket was launched from a B-29 mother ship, at about 30,000 feet, for the start of its record-shattering flight.

It has a turbo-jet engine with a rocket engine for the additional thrust to move into supersonic flight, and has wings swept back 35 degrees.

Fair Trade Law Bars Price Cuts

WASHINGTON — (AP) — From now on, retail price cutting on trademarked or brand name merchandise is illegal in any of 45 states if manufacturers first fix prices by agreements with one or more retailers within a state's boundaries.

President Truman yesterday signed a federal fair trade law, ratifying such agreements in states having fair trade laws.

The federal law requires all merchants in a state to charge the retail price set by the manufacturer, whether or not they sign the agreement, if at least one retailer has signed such an agreement.

In this respect, it reverses a 1951 supreme court decision that merchants who did not sign the agreements could not be required to observe the fixed price.

Enforcement will be up to the 45 states — all except Missouri, Texas and Vermont—having fair trade laws.

Signing the controversial bill, President Truman said it will eliminate "certain unfair competitive practices and thereby will help small businessmen to stay in business."

But, he said it also will "remove some competitive force which otherwise would operate to help keep prices down."

Government Revives Negotiations To End Steel Strike

an increase averaging $5.65 a ton.

Industry's last offer at the weekend sessions was not disclosed. However, it is believed to call for what one industrial spokesman termed "a watered down" version of the modified union shop which was made part of a separate strike-ending agreement the union signed with Pittsburgh Steel.

A union shop requires all employes to join the union. The Pittsburgh Steel type of union shop stipulated that all new employes must join but can drop out between the 20th and 30 days of work.

The wage proposal made by the companies calls for a 24.6 cent hourly pay package. The package would include a 16 cent an hour outright increase and the remainder in fringe benefits.

The Wage Stabilization Board, when it was trying to avert the strike, recommended a 26½ cent hourly package and a union shop as terms for a new contract.

Hard-Boiled General Boatner Boss Of All POW Camps In Korea

U. S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea — (AP)—Brig. Gen. Haydon L. (Bull) Boatner, who broke the mutinous resistance of fanatic Communist prisoners on Koje Island last month, today was named commander of all U. N. prisoner of war camps in Korea.

His new post is called deputy commander of the second logistical command for POW affairs.

The new job does not—at least for the moment—carry a higher rank, but it gives the hard boiled infantry general broader authority and a far bigger say in U. N. prisoner of war affairs.

Except for high policy decisions, his will be the last word in day-to-day handling of prison camp problems.

Waves which are blown past a headland sometimes turn and break on the lee shore.

Wall Street

By RICHARD FISKE

NEW YORK — (AP) — Steels, motors and rails pulled the stock market into higher ground today.

Some chemicals and non-ferrous metals joined the parade but the advance had no great force behind it.

Activity quieted down considerably midway through the session and many of the gainers fell back a bit from their best prices.

Most of the advances and pretty nearly all the losses were fractional. There were a few gains of around a point.

The resumption of steel strike settlement talks at Pittsburgh was the principal single item of news that buoyed the market. It was this resumption of talks at the urging of the government that started prices upward after a fast but indecisive opening.

Bethlehem Steel and Chrysler Motors were among the more active of the steel and automobile gainers.

The advances included U. S. Steel, Republic and Youngstown in the steel group; General Motors and Studebaker among the autos; Santa Fe, New York Central and Southern Railway in the rails; American Cyanamid and Dow Chemical in the chemical group, and Kennecott, Anaconda and Phelps Dodge among the nonferrous metals.

Other gainers included Caterpillar, Philco, Westinghouse, General Electric and U. S. Gypsum.

Navy Prepared To Aid In Asia

By LEIF ERICKSON

PEARL HARBOR— (AP) —Adm. William M. Fechteler, chief of Naval operations, says the U. S. Navy "now is large enough to take calculated risks until we can go into full mobilization."

He made the statement at a press conference last night before his scheduled departure for Tokyo and Korea.

Asked if the Navy could cope with new trouble around the Pacific, for instance in southeast Asia, Fechteler replied:

"We are prepared to go there."

He said the Navy plans no shift or re-deployment of its three big carriers from the Atlantic to the Pacific "under present world conditions."

Asked if the Navy had jet aircraft types which could match the Air Force mass flight of 59 jet fighters now crossing the Pacific, the Naval member of the joint chiefs of staff said:

"With our carriers we take our planes and our bases along with us. We don't have to ask anyone's permission to set up a base. Our carriers are our bases, wherever they can go on blue water."

Big Presidential Contest Full Of Question Marks

opposed to their man.

Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, a brief visitor at the convention city last night, said he is certain "the President is not against me."

Sen. Richard B. Russell's campaign manager, Sen. Edwin C. Johnson of Colorado, told newsmen Russell had seen the President last week but that he did not know what passed between them.

And Kefauver's campaign commander, Gael Sullivan, ridiculed the suggestion that either the President or the Democratic party leaders are opposed to Kefauver. "Pure nonsense put out by his opponents," said Sullivan.

Each of these headquarters confidently discusses the outlook when the roll is called out yonder in the stockyards next week.

Claims Southern Support

Russell's camp says he has 300 convention votes—it takes 616 to win the nomination—and a solid bloc of southern support. It will increase, Sen. Johnson said, to the winning point "around the 10th ballot—or rather, I'll say the last ballot."

Sullivan told this reporter he wouldn't be "mouse trapped into discussing an estimate of Kefauver's delegate strength or when the Tennessean will see the winning number.

"Taft's people did that right up to the convention," Sullivan recalled. "They had 550, and 590, and 603—and look what happened.

"I'll just say that Estes has a tide of support coming his way."

Sen. Kerr, sitting on the edge of a hotelroom bed, told some reporters he has a minimum of 150 first-ballot votes, and said "I wouldn't trade my chances with anyone. . . Fact is, I'm going to be nominated."

Barkley Man To Beat

These are not the only major Democratic candidates.

Vice President Alben Barkley is another. And Russell's manager says he thinks the "Veep" is the man to beat, even while conceding that Kefauver will be out in front in the early stages of the race.

Headquarters have been established for W. Averell Harriman of New York, director of the Mutual Security Administration.

Harriman, Barkley, Russell and Kefauver are the leading contenders at this point in the view of Frank McKinney, chairman of the national committee. He agreed with the general opinion that it is a wide open race. McKinney arrived last night.

Meanwhile, the surprisingly durable and long-lived rumors about Gov. Adlai tevenson, of Illinois, were still haunting the corridors of the Conrad Hilton Hotel, central arena for all the pre-convention hubbub.

Draft Talk Continues

Stevenson says, virtually every hour on the hour, that he doesn't wnat the nomination. There is a report that the President no longer is trying to persuade him, another is that Jacob Arvey, of Chicago, one of the original and most emphatic backers of the governor, also has decided not to press him any further.

But another story has it that the Illinois delegates are marshalling for a draft - Stevenson drive next week. The governor recently said he would ask these and all delegates not to bring his name before the convention.

Kefauver and Russell are expected in Chicago late today to take personal charge of their operations. The others will be here later in the week.

Russians Ordered To Quit Publishing Pamphlets In U. S.

By JOHN A. SCALI

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The State Department today ordered the Russian embassy to quit publishing and distributing pamphlets in the United States.

A department statment announcing this said the U. S. was suspending publication of a Russian-language magazine called "Amerika" which it had been distributing in Russia.

Magazine Obstructed

It said the twin actions were taken because the Russians were obstructing distribution of "Amerika" in the Soviet Union.

In halting the "Amerika" project, the department gave up operations on the last remaining wedge into the Iron Curtain.

A spokesman said the slick-paper magazine was so popular in the Soviet Union that newsstands sold out all copies within a few hours after they went on sale wherever the Russian government did not interfere.

Second-hand copies were sometimes sold on the black market at many times the original price of ten rubles

In a note addressed to the Russian foreign office, the State Department asserted:

"As a result of this obstruction, the number of copies which can be presumed to reach the Soviet public has become so small as not to justify this effort of the government of the United States to supply Soviet readers with a true picture of American life and thus to promote understanding between the two peoples."

Propaganda Violent

The retaliatory action prohibits the embassy from publishing and distributing in this country the "U. S. S. R. information bulletin" and any other Russian pamphlets.

The Soviet information bulletin is a slick-paper English-language magazine which purports to tell of life in the Soviet union. It is sometimes illustrated and features pictures of Russian workers.

The State Department raked Russian government publications for what it described as a violent propaganda attack against "Amerika." This campaign, the department said, was begun in 1947 and accused "Amerika" of a "lying," "rotten, bourgeoise journalism," and of being "decadent."

This government, the announcement said, will consider resumption of publication whenever Russia is "willing to grant the magazine the same freedom of publication, distribution and sales which has been accorded Soviet publications in the United States."

The Russians also would be required to make it possible for Americans to check on actual distribution of the magazine within Russia.

The circulation of "Amerika" climbed to 50,000 copies monthly in 1946, but by last month, sales had dropped to 13,000.

Lifeguards Save Six In One Day At Menominee Beach

MENOMINEE — All records for life saving were broken at Menominee Beach Sunday when Kenneth M. Radick, water safety director, and his life-guards hauled six to safety.

The six rescues Sunday made a total of nine saved since the lifeguards went on duty this year.

Radick today appealed to parents to warn children that Green Bay's highest level since 1886 has made swimming conditions hazardous because the water is deeper in favorite swimming and bathing spots than ever before and places which were safe for nonswimmers a year ago are now dangerously deep.

"Most of the trouble this year has been caused by the high water, which is over the small pier," Radick said. "The water is several feet higher than normal and children think they can swim and bathe this year in the same places. They find the water is over their heads and they get panicky."

"Another danger is swimmers who think they know about life saving and who become a hazard to themselves and the person they are trying to save. We had one of those cases Sunday."

One-Armed Man Saves 3 Children; 3 Drown Playing With Liferaft

ELSINORE, Calif.—(AP)—A one-armed man went to the rescue when six children—brothers and sisters—floundered into the water of Lake Elsinore from war surplus life raft yesterday. He saved the three youngest but the other three drowned.

Sheriff's deputies reported that the children apparently became panicky when the youngest, a 4-year-old girl, fell into the water. Then all the others either fell or jumped in.

On the shore Joe Kuperwitz, 50, observed the children and noticed that a wind had sent their raft drifting. He set out in a motorboat to tow them back to shore. It was while he was nearing the raft that one girl fell in.

Kuperwitz dived in and pulled three into his boat but a fourth slipped from his grasp. The parents are Mr. and Mrs. Cecilio CorDova of Compton, Calif., who were vacationing at this Riverside County resort with their 10 children.

Those saved were Manuoel, 7, Sebastian, 6, and Rosita, 4. Lost were Hassan, 12, Marcella, 11, and Marquita, 9. The bodies were recovered by sheriff's officers.

Escaping Convict, 20, Suffocates In Sewer At Salem, Ore., Prison

SALEM, Ore.—(AP)—A convict suffocated in a 15-inch sewer pipe yesterday in a daring but futile escape attempt from the Oregon State prison.

He was 20-year-old Harold Allen Hayes.

Another convict, Franklin Clingenteel, 17, also was involved in the attempt. His calls that he was stuck in the narrow pipe, five feet underground, brought guards to the prison yard manhole which the two convicts had hoped was the way to freedom.

They had planned to worm their way through the pipe to another manhole outside the prison walls—a fourth of a mile away.

Hayes' body was found in the pipe about 375 feet from the manhole the convicts had entered.

Both men were in prison on burglary convictions. Clingenteel had served 17 months of a two-year sentence and Hayes, four months of a three-year sentence.

Bribers Try Early To Buy Democratic Convention Votes

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Someone is trying to buy Democratic convention votes even before it starts, Sen. Estes Kefauver's California campaign manager charges.

John Anson Ford, Los Angeles county supervisor and chairman of the California delegation pledged to the Tennessee senator, told newsmen last night that bribes have been offered to members of the California delegation.

Delegates have received anonymous telephone calls asking them to switch their votes after the first ballot, Ford said. He declined to idwentify the faction allegedly offering the bries.

Ford said a person who paid "more than $1,600" for eight round trip tickets to Chicago gave a fictitious name and address. "It seems possible that someone was trying to influence California delegates by offering them free transportation," he said.

"Wilbur Le Gette, one of the delegates from Southern California, told me he had been offered $500 if he could get three other delegates to join him in switching to another candidate after the first ballot," Ford said.

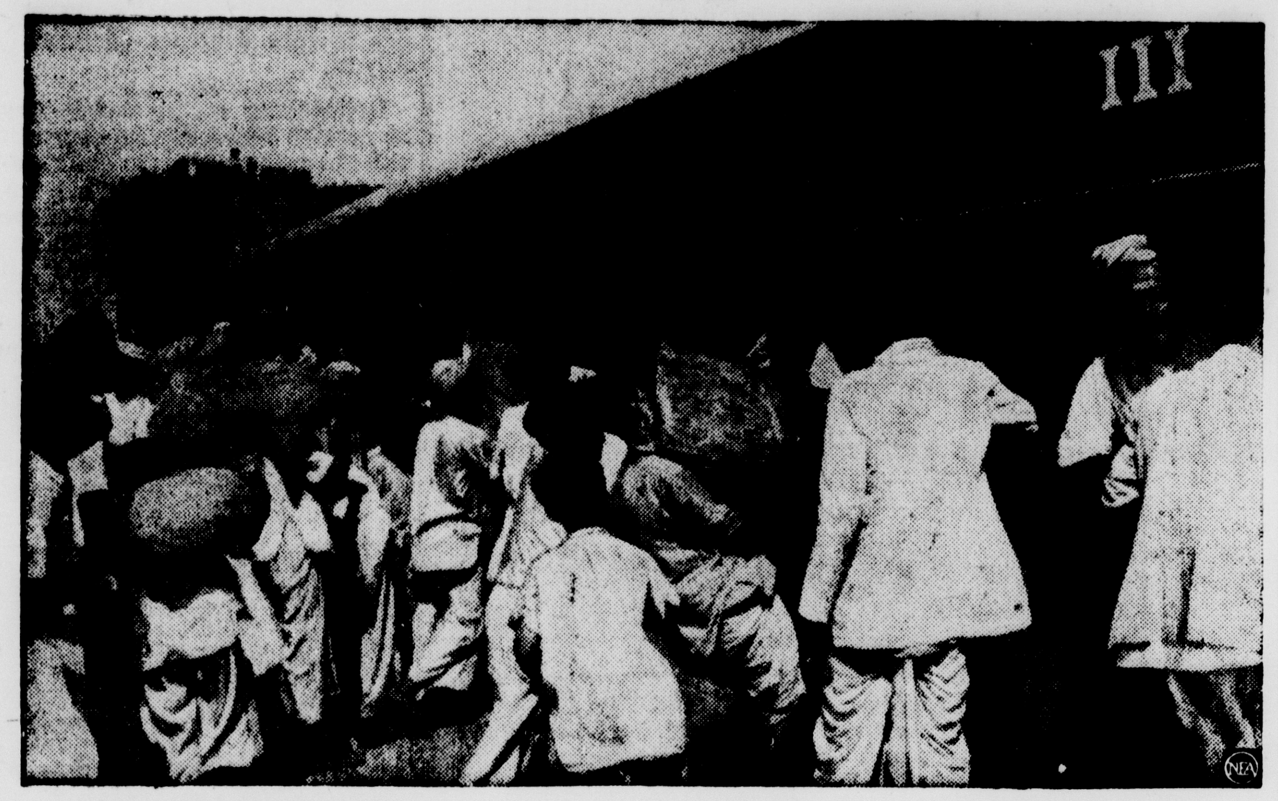
Indian Train Travel Is Risky; Anything Can Happen--And Does



ALL ABOARD! And in India, the all means everybody. The equivalent of half the world's population crowd into trains there like this, most of them in third class coaches. The big bundles could be grain, which is smuggled across borders by halting trains in remote spots.

By TOM A. CULLEN
NEA Special Correspondent

NEW DELHI, India—(NEA)—Train travel in India has all the thrills of riding a U. S. mail train into Jesse James' territory with the guards deep in a poker game in the caboose.

Not only are Indian trains the most crowded in the world. They also hold what is probably the world's record for crime committed on railways.

To get an idea of the overcrowding on Indian trains, double the number of passengers who irde the U. S. rails and reduce the number of U. S. passenger coaches by 40 per cent. The staggering total of 1,307,000,000 passengers, or the equivalent of more than half of the world's population, rode Indian trains last year.

The crimes these passengers faced ranged from murder, with robbery as its motive, to the filching of light bulbs from third class compartments, a seemingly universal practice.

Although the chances of a train being wrecked by sabotage are fairly remote (only 23 out of 229 attempts at train-wrecking were successful last year), the possibility that it may hit a cow is a live one; it accounted for 5176 accidents, or 23 per cent of last year's total.

Inasmuch as almost all robberies occur in first and second class coaches, these upper classes of travel have become increasingly unpopular.

No feudal baron ever secured the gates of his castle with more care than that exercised by the average first class passenger in bolting the doors and windows of his compartment before retiring at night.

The windows, themselves, are protected by iron bars, giving the coach the appearance of a prison car used in hauling chain gangs. Despite these precautions, there were 849 train robberies and thefts last April alone.

Most exponents of fair-play felt that things had gone a bit too far when an ex-cabinet minister was slugged and robbed on the Bombay-Madras Mail recently by a pair of thugs, one of whom was armed with "a rusty dagger," accarding to press reports.

His assailants gained entry by using a slim youth who slipped his head and shoulders into the narrow space between window bars.

In the minor leagues, traveling without a ticket is a sport which has a sizable portion of the population as enthusiastic adherents. Nearly eight million dead beats were detected riding on trains last year, and the fares and penalties collected from them amounted to $4,000,000.

Recently the train in which I was traveling to Calcutta suddenly stopped near the outskirts of that city as the result of someone pulling the emergency alarm signal (penalty for misuse: 50 rupees, or $10).

About a hundred villagers, or "upcountry" people, as they are called, each loaded with a large bundle, got out of the third-class carriages.

"What's up?" I asked a fellow possenger.

"Smugglers," he explained. "They're smuggling rice from Burdwan to Calcutta."

Food grains being "frozen" in most parts of India, it is unlawful to transport them from one district to another.

Another time, our train was stopped by police who searched the compartment in which I was sitting without success.

When the police had left the passengers seemed in unusually high spirits. "They are laughing," a passenger told me, "because the bags of rice are in the women's compartment, and the police dare not enter it."

Marriage For Escape Will Only Be A Trap

By Elizabeth B. Hurlock, Ph.D.

When things get difficult for teenagers, they want to escape. When the difficulties arise in their homes, many of them think of marriage as a way out of their troubles. This 18-year-old girl is facing such a problem:

(Q) "I have one more year before I graduate from high school. My mother doesn't understand when I tell her how I feel about things, and we just fight. I am from a family of nine and all we ever do is just fight. I thought if I married and still finished high school, I could get away from it all. Don't think this is the only reason I want to get married. I love the fellow I go with very much and he loves me. If I don't marry him, I have no other place to go."

(A) Your dominant aim now is to get away from your family so you can avoid the fights and unhappiness of your home life. Are you trying to convince yourself that you are really in love enough to want to marry?

Would you really better yourself by marrying now? It would be an escape from a situation you find intolerable but that should not be your reason for marrying. If it is, your marriage won't succeed.

Why not try to get along with your family until you finish your education? You have just one more year and during that time you can get a clearer idea of what you want to do with your life. Now you are confusing two problems.

Find out from your principal if your school will permit you to return of you marry. Some high schools permit married students to continue their education and some do not.

Then you must realize that marriage brings with it many responsibilities. You would have a home of your own to take care of and your husband would naturally want you to do things with him. Would this give you the time you need for your studies? Then too, would you better your lot by marrying now? Is the young man able to support you if you study or would you have to give up your education and go to work? Don't jump from the frying pan into the fire.

Dr. Hurlock will help you with family problems. Write her in care of this newspaper.

EHS Class Of '27 Gathers Here For 25-Year Reunion

The Escanaba High School class of 1927 held a successful 25th anniversary reunion at the Dells Supper club Saturday evening with an attendance of 100, including wives and husbands of the alumni. Guests of the class were Supt. and Mrs. John A. Lemmer and Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Loveland.

Festivities opened with a cocktail hour at 6 followed by dinner at 7:30.

The role of toastmaster was ably handled by Chapman Smith. Gladwin Oberg, class president, gave the welcome address and Ethel Gessner Rosenfeld of Washington, D. C., who was valedictorian, the response.

During the roll call conducted by Alvin St. Pierre a moment of silence was observed in memory of deceased members of the class, Blanche Bartlett, Harry Erickson, Melvin Hansen, Ingrid Hendrickson, Ethel Kvam, Alive Martin, LaVerne Norval, William Smith and Mildred Thompson.

The class advisors, Mrs. Lemmer and Mr. Loveland, gave short talks and group singing followed with Rachelle Godin Groos, accompanist, and Irene Fragile Stratton, leader.

In the spirit of fun awards were presented by Clifford O'Donnell as follows: first married, largest family, youngest child, latest married, male with the least hair, longest journey and first grandparent. The program closed with "Auld Lang Syne." The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing and reminiscing.

A special bulletin board displayed messages from those unable to attend. A coincidence was a telephone call from James Wilkinson of Manitoba, Canada, which came as the class roll was being called.

Safety Can Be Taught Children

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE
AP Newsfeatures

As parents you face the problem of how to prevent children doing many thing which endanger life and limbs.

Reports of dangerous behavior read like a nightmare. The children run in front of speeding autos, fall from bicycles, and break all traffic-safety rules. They play with matches and set the house on fire. They swallow poisons and poke scissors into electric outlets. They break their own bones and nearly blind other children. They run grave risks while throwing stones and snowballs, climbing roofs, swimming, playing ball and shooting BB guns.

There is a gleam of hope in the situation say the noted psychologists and educational consultants, Drs. Norma E. Cutts and Nicholas Moseley. In their forthcoming book, "Better Home Discipline," (Appleton-Century-Crofts, N. Y.) they put out "you can teach children to avoid accidents."

Stay With the Child

While your children are too young to take care of themselves dont leave them out of doors alone except in a screened porch, a play pen, or a fenced yard, they say. Make doubly sure that the child cannot get out by climbing a barricade or by lifting a latch.

Another precaution to take is not to trust young children to the care of slightly older sisters or brothers, they say.

A third precaution is to keep alert when you are walking with a child. Do not lose yourself in conversation with a friend or in window shopping.

Above all, they say, give the young child all the safe experience you can. "Many parents put young children to harness and take them walking. The other day we saw a mother driving her sons, 3 and 4, in double harness. They pranced along like a prize team. She hauled them up at red lights, guided them away from the curb, and in general gave them a lesson on how to behave in traffic.

Watch the Lights

"Practice of this kind starts a child with the right ideas about walking on the sidewalk and watching for lights to change. Soon he will step out as though he were on his own. But keep hold of him and concentrate your attention on him. By 4 he will wish to walk without even holding your hand, and may be rebellious. Don't yield yet.

"At 5 most children are capable of following a carefully worked-out route to and from kindergarten." But even at this age before you let a child go alone on a route, go over it with him. Have him tell you about which crossings to use, about lights, and about looking both ways.

Burns, point out the authors, are another cause most frequently found among accidental deaths. Telling a child a match will burn him or even allowing him to get burned is no sure way of preventing him from playing with fire, they say. Better still, keep all matches where children can't get at them. And that goes, too, for poisons.

Rules to Apply

Here are some precautions to take, according to the authors:

1. Keep all poisons, including sleeping pills, locked up in a special place.

2. Keep pot handles turned to the back of the stove.

3. Consider safety when making purchases. If you are buying a stove, buy one that lights automatically. If you are buying lamps or appliances, be sure they bear the label "UL," showing the Underwriters Laboratories have approved them.

4. Do not leave young children alone with sharp tools, or with any metal tool in a room that has electric outlets.

5. Have a group inspection—by husband, wife, and children—of the whole house and see who can point out the greatest number of dangers and the best ways to eliminate them. Your insurance company will be glad to send you a pamphlet telling you what to look for.

Training a child to live in a world full of hazards requires courage and some common-sense precautions, the authors say. Have definite rules, but keep them to a minimum; set a good example in observing common-sense rules of safety in the home and out; join with other parents to study safety in the home and street; keep first-aid materials on hand and your knowledge of first-aid up to date; finally, keep clearly in mind the child's capacity to understand dangers and to assume responsibilities.

History may repeat itself at the Democratic convention as southern states led by Gov. Byrnes, of South Carolina, threaten to bolt the party if northern factions insist on including the civil rights issue in the party platform. The "Dixie" states with 128 electoral votes are a vital factor (266 votes needed to win) if the Democrats plan to remain in the White House after the November elections.

Flattering Hat Is Beauty Aid

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

Hats can be a great beauty aid—if you buy them with your particular needs in mind. Just as you create illusions with make-up, look for hats that help you to achieve a more perfect facial effect.

If your nose tends to be a bit too long, for example, be careful that the brim of your hat does not dip down in the same direction as your nose. Keep away from towering crowns and exotic treatments. The hats you wear should reveal a neat, simple line, and they should never be too small.

The high-crowned hat is not flattering to the long, thin face, either. If you are trying to add width, pick wide brims, the profile hat and the big drum. Side effects, such as flowers and feathers, are extremely good for creating a wide illusion.

Chapeau shopping presents other problems for the wide face. The only hats that should be of interest to you are those with long, sleek designs that emphasize height. Don't be afraid to wear the unusual. Just be sure it makes your face look thinner.

And don't forget to take your chin into consideration before you buy "that" hat. A small, receding line demands that you stay away from tip-tilted brims and flower clusters on your brow. The best hats for you are the small cloche types.

Again look for as little detail as possible. Just the opposite hat-buying rules apply if you have a sharp, jutting chinline.

New Prison Work Camp To Be Built Near Ludington

LANSING — Construction is slated soon on a new 50-man prison work camp near Ludington, the conservation department reports.

The camp, a joint project between the departments of correction and conservation, will be located on the north end of Hamlin lake, near Ludington state park on the west side of that lake.

Some work already has begun: well-drilling and powerline installation to the site. But actual construction of buildings probably will be held off until the U. S. Forest Service gives an official okay scheduled next week. The camp site is on federal forest land.

However, former CCC buildings in Allegan state forest were being dismantled by prison labor this week for shipment to Ludington and re-construction there would give the camp its first buildings.

Eight other prison camps are now operating in Michigan, including seven located in state park areas and one on the Cusino game area in the Upper Peninsula.

A lamp for the telephone has been designed that automatically turns on when the telephone bell rings. Sound waves from the bell actuate the switch that turns on the electricity. It is particularly for use at night to aid in reaching a ringing phone.

PARTNERS IN AMERICAN BUSINESS are these stockholder-owners of Standard Oil. Here Robert J. Owens, Elizabeth B. Moran, and Lorna Sullivan are inspecting a model of oil field equipment on display at Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry.

Ever wonder what it's like to own an oil well?

Barrels of oil gushing up in your back yard is the dream most of us have had at one time or another, though it very rarely comes true. In most cases owning an oil well is accomplished in another way.

Of course, in our case, every one of the more than 120,000 stockholders of Standard Oil not only has an interest in thousands of wells, but every stockholder is part owner of many other kinds of facilities, too. For Standard Oil and its subsidiary companies find new sources of oil, drill hundreds of wells in proved fields, transport oil to our refineries—and distribute finished products to many thousands of service stations, industries and homes.

"Owning a well" by having an interest in Standard Oil works two ways:

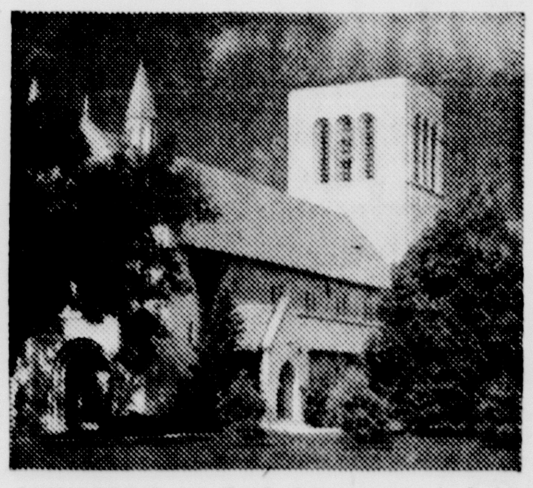
First, your ownership brings you a return in the form of dividends paid out of the company's profits. And of course, the company has an obligation to its owners to endeavor to operate at a profit. 1951 was our 58th consecutive year of paying dividends, and our stockholders last year received dividends with a value equal to $3.95 per share.

Second, your ownership helps the company . . .

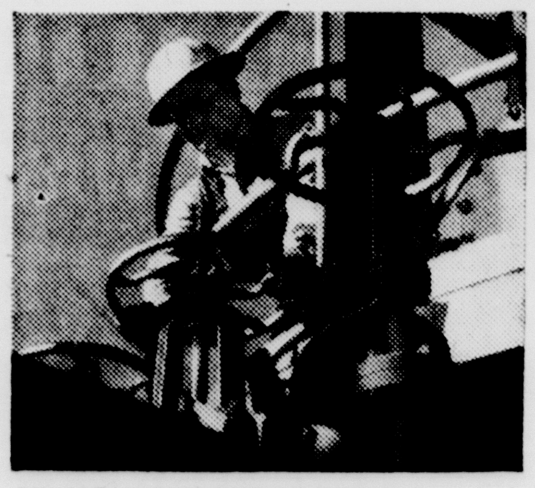
- to keep on expanding facilities to furnish the petroleum so essential to America's future security.
- to provide an abundant supply of more than 2,000 quality petroleum products to our millions of customers—and at reasonable prices.
- to join in keeping strong the very economic system which has been this nation's backbone.

That is what it's like to "own an oil well" through having ownership in the Standard Oil Company. And, basically, that is what it's like to have a share in many other American businesses.

Standard Oil Company



OWNERSHIP IN OUR COMPANY is held by both individuals (including about 28,000 of us who are employee-owners) and institutions—educational institutions like Colorado College, Colorado Springs, Colorado; charitable organizations; and hundreds of insurance companies and business firms. No institutional stockholder owns so much as 4% of our stock; no individual owns so much as 1%.



OWNERSHIP IN OUR COMPANY is backed by efficient equipment at modern refineries like the one at Casper, Wyoming, where Fred L. Meyenfeldt works. Largely because in recent years about two-thirds of our profits were used for new facilities, our 49,700 employees are backed by an average of $31,400 in tools and equipment, enabling each of them to do a better job and to have steady work at good pay.

OWNERSHIP IN OUR COMPANY by our stockholders helps independent dealers like R. M. Wininger of French Lick, Indiana, to give better service to customers like Norman Hendrix. Because we have been able constantly to expand our facilities, Mr. Hendrix and our millions of other customers are assured a steady supply of high quality petroleum products—at surprisingly low prices.

Marriage For Escape Will Only Be A Trap

By Elizabeth B. Hurlock, Ph.D.

When things get difficult for teenagers, they want to escape. When the difficulties arise in their homes, many of them think of marriage as a way out of their troubles. This 18-year-old girl is facing such a problem:

(Q) "I have one more year before I graduate from high school. My mother doesn't understand when I tell her how I feel about things, and we just fight. I am from a family of nine and all we ever do is just fight. I thought if I married and still finished high school, I could get away from it all. Don't think this is the only reason I want to get married. I love the fellow I go with very much and he loves me. If I don't marry him, I have no other place to go."

(A) Your dominant aim now is to get away from your family so you can avoid the fights and unhappiness of your home life. Are you trying to convince yourself that you are really in love enough to want to marry?

Would you really better yourself by marrying now? It would be an escape from a situation you find intolerable but that should not be your reason for marrying. If it is, your marriage won't succeed.

Why not try to get along with your family until you finish your education? You have just one more year and during that time you can get a clearer idea of what you want to do with your life. Now you are confusing two problems.

Find out from your principal if your school will permit you to return of you marry. Some high schools permit married students to continue their education and some do not.

Then you must realize that marriage brings with it many responsibilities. You would have a home of your own to take care of and your husband would naturally want you to do things with him. Would this give you the time you need for your studies? Then too, would you better your lot by marrying now? Is the young man able to support you if you study or would you have to give up your education and go to work? Don't jump from the frying pan into the fire.

Dr. Hurlock will help you with family problems. Write her in care of this newspaper.

EHS Class Of '27 Gathers Here For 25-Year Reunion

The Escanaba High School class of 1927 held a successful 25th anniversary reunion at the Dells Supper club Saturday evening with an attendance of 100, including wives and husbands of the alumni. Guests of the class were Supt. and Mrs. John A. Lemmer and Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Loveland.

Festivities opened with a cocktail hour at 6 followed by dinner at 7:30.

The role of toastmaster was ably handled by Chapman Smith. Gladwin Oberg, class president, gave the welcome address and Ethel Gessner Rosenfeld of Washington, D. C., who was valedictorian, the response.

During the roll call conducted by Alvin St. Pierre a moment of silence was observed in memory of deceased members of the class, Blanche Bartlett, Harry Erickson, Melvin Hansen, Ingrid Hendrickson, Ethel Kvam, Alive Martin, LaVerne Norval, William Smith and Mildred Thompson.

The class advisors, Mrs. Lemmer and Mr. Loveland, gave short talks and group singing followed with Rachelle Godin Groos, accompanist, and Irene Fragile Stratton, leader.

In the spirit of fun awards were presented by Clifford O'Donnell as follows: first married, largest family, youngest child, latest married, male with the least hair, longest journey and first grandparent. The program closed with "Auld Lang Syne." The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing and reminiscing.

A special bulletin board displayed messages from those unable to attend. A coincidence was a telephone call from James Wilkinson of Manitoba, Canada, which came as the class roll was being called.

Safety Can Be Taught Children

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE
AP Newsfeatures

As parents you face the problem of how to prevent children doing many thing which endanger life and limbs.

Reports of dangerous behavior read like a nightmare. The children run in front of speeding autos, fall from bicycles, and break all traffic - safety rules. They play with matches and set the house on fire. They swallow poisons and poke scissors into electric outlets. They break their own bones and nearly blind other children. They run grave risks while throwing stones and snowballs, climbing roofs, swimming, playing ball and shooting BB guns.

There is a gleam of hope in the situation say the noted psychologists and educational consultants, Drs. Norma E. Cutts and Nicholas Moseley. In their forthcoming book, "Better Home Discipline," (Appleton-Century-Crofts, N. Y.) they put out "you can teach children to avoid accidents."

Stay With the Child

While your children are too young to take care of themselves dont leave them out of doors alone except in a screened porch, a play pen, or a fenced yard, they say. Make doubly sure that the child cannot get out by climbing a barricade or by lifting a latch.

Another precaution to take is not to trust young children to the care of slightly older sisters or brothers, they say.

A third precaution is to keep alert when you are walking with a child. Do not lose yourself in conversation with a friend or in window shopping.

Above all, they say, give the young child all the safe experience you can. "Many parents put young children to harness and take them walking. The other day we saw a mother driving' her sons, 3 and 4, in double harness. They pranced along like a prize team. She hauled them up at red lights, guided them away from the curb, and in general gave them a lesson on how to behave in traffic.

Watch the Lights

"Practice of this kind starts a child with the right ideas about walking on the sidewalk and watching for lights to change. Soon he will step out as though he were on his own. But keep hold of him and concentrate your attention on him. By 4 he will wish to walk without even holding your hand, and may be rebellious. Don't yield yet.

"At 5 most children are capable of following a carefully worked-out route to and from kindergarten." But even at this age before you let a child go alone on a route, go over it with him. Have him tell you about which crossings to use, about lights, and about looking both ways.

Burns, point out the authors, are another cause most frequently found among accidental deaths. Telling a child a match will burn him or even allowing him to get burned is no sure way of preventing him from playing with fire, they say. Better still, keep all matches where children can't get at them. And that goes, too, for poisons.

Rules to Apply

Here are some precautions to take, according to the authors:

1. Keep all poisons, including sleeping pills, locked up in a special place.
2. Keep pot handles turned to the back of the stove.
3. Consider safety when making purchases. If you are buying a stove, buy one that lights automatically. If you are buying lamps or appliances, be sure they bear the label "UL," showing the Underwriters Laboratories have approved them.
4. Do not leave young children alone with sharp tools, or with any metal tool in a room that has electric outlets.
5. Have a group inspection—by husband, wife, and children—of the whole house and see who can point out the greatest number of dangers and the best ways to eliminate them. Your insurance company will be glad to send you a pamphlet telling you what to look for.

Training a child to live in a world full of hazards requires courage and some common-sense precautions, the authors say. Have definite rules, but keep them to a minimum; set a good example in observing common-sense rules of safety in the home and out; join with other parents to study safety in the home and street; keep first-aid materials on hand and your knowledge of first-aid up to date; finally, keep clearly in mind the child's capacity to understand dangers and to assume responsibilities.

History may repeat itself at the Democratic convention as southern states led by Gov. Byrnes, of South Carolina, threaten to bolt the party if northern factions insist on including the civil rights issue in the party platform. The "Dixie" states with 128 electoral votes are a vital factor (266 votes needed to win) if the Democrats plan to remain in the White House after the November elections.

Flattering Hat Is Beauty Aid

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

Hats can be a great beauty aid—if you buy them with your particular needs in mind. Just as you create illusions with make-up, look for hats that help you to achieve a more perfect facial effect.

If your nose tends to be a bit too long, for example, be careful that the brim of your hat does not dip down in the same direction as your nose. Keep away from towering crowns and exotic treatments. The hats you wear should reveal a neat, simple line, and they should never be too small.

The high - crowned hat is not flattering to the long, thin face, either. If you are trying to add width, pick wide brims, the profile hat and the big drum. Side effects, such as flowers and feathers, are extremely good for creating a wide illusion.

Chapeau shopping presents other problems for the wide face. The only hats that should be of interest to you are those with long, sleek designs that emphasize height. Don't be afraid to wear the unusual. Just be sure it makes your face look thinner.

And don't forget to take your chin into consideration before you buy "that" hat. A small, receding line demands that you stay away from tip-tilted brims and flower clusters on your brow. The best hats for you are the small cloche types.

Again look for as little detail as possible. Just the opposite hat-buying rules apply if you have a sharp, jutting chinline.

New Prison Work Camp To Be Built Near Ludington

LANSING — Construction is slated soon on a new 50-man prison work camp near Ludington, the conservation department reports.

The camp, a joint project between the departments of correction and conservation, will be located on the north end of Hamlin lake, near Ludington state park on the west side of that lake.

Some work already has begun; well-drilling and powerline installation to the site. But actual construction of buildings probably will be held off until the U. S. Forest Service gives an official okay scheduled next week. The camp site is on federal forest land.

However, former CCC buildings in Allegan state forest were being dismantled by prison labor this week for shipment to Ludington and re-construction there would give the camp its first buildings.

Eight other prison camps are now operating in Michigan, including seven located in state park areas and one on the Cusino game area in the Upper Peninsula.

Rifle Expert To Appear Here

William Johnson, of Waupaca, Wis., rifle expert for a nationally known arms manufacturer, has been engaged for a program at the annual picnic of the Schoolcraft County Sportsmen's Club on Sunday, July 27, it is announced. The picnic will be held at the club building grounds, Manistique Heights.

Johnson is appearing here under the auspices of Ted Hentschell, local sporting goods dealer.

He will present a demonstration of rifle shooting in the afternoon, beginning at 3, and also will give a short talk on gun safety.

Johnson served as an arms instructor during World War II and also has been arms instructor at the Sault Ste. Marie army encampment. He is nationally known as a marksman, has given exhibition shoots on the stage, and is national trick shot champion.

The program also will include races for children between 12 and 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Coffee, refreshments, ice cream and pop will be available at the grounds but those attending are expected to bring their own picnic lunches.

Robert Hentschell is general picnic chairman. Assisting him are Nels Halsey, Robert Hoar, Earl Cowman, Dr. C. L. Novak, Jerome Hoholik, L. E. Hambeau and Gerald Mullen.

Herbert Appears In Telecast On Reapportionment

J. Joseph Herbert, Manistique attorney, who is a senior member of the University of Michigan Board of Regents, recently participated in a television panel discussion of Michigan's three reapportionment plans, according to an article appearing in the July issue of "Inside Michigan."

Also appearing in the telecast were Mrs. Zaio Woodford Schroeder, Detroit, chairman of the international affairs department of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and district president of the Southeastern Federation of Women's Clubs; C. L. Brody, Lansing, chairman of the State Board of Agriculture which is the governing board of Michigan State College; and Eldon W. Sneeringer, Detroit, senior staff member of the Citizens' Research Council and a technical adviser on apportionment. Ted Grace served as panel moderator.

Three reapportionment plans were discussed by the panel members—the CIO plan which provides for a senate of 33 members and a house of 99 members; the Citizens' Association plan which provides for a house of 107 members and a senate of 24 members; and a Detroit Teachers' plan which would establish a house of 108 representatives and a senate of 36 members.

Principal opposition to the CIO and the Detroit Teachers' plans has been centered on the allegation that both would give state control to the Detroit area because population is the only determining factor utilized.

Proponents of the Citizens' plan state that it would provide balanced representation, with no complete legislative control being held by any one group or area.

Seal Coating Work Underway

Seal coating of seven blocks on the westside is expected to be completed this week, it is announced.

The street repair program, announced several weeks ago by H. W. Heideman, city manager, started July 10 following receipt of a car of tar. Approximately 400 tons of crushed stone for the street program had been purchased earlier from the Inland Lime and Stone Company.

Two blocks have been completed on First and Fourth streets and one on Third. Still to be finished are another block on Third and a block on Second.

Although other seal coating work is contemplated, the present repair program will wind up seal coating until additional stone is available, and more tar is purchased, it is announced.

Figures Show Young Generation Not Lazy

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The younger generation isn't as lazy as some claim. The Census Bureau says five times more high school youngsters hold jobs now than in 1940.

The Bureau reported that an October survey showed 28 of each 100 boys and 17 of each 100 girls in the 14 to 17 year old age bracket both go to school and hold down outside jobs.

They totaled 1,600,000, compared with only 300,000 in 1940. The peak, however, was during the war when 2,300,000 held jobs in 1944.

Perkins clung to a first division spot in the Bay de Noc League standings by handing Cornell its seventh straight loss of the season Sunday by a 5-1 score.

Joe Richards went the route for Perkins, scattering five hits, fanning seven and walking five. Sinclair, Cornell shortstop, spoiled a shutout with a run in the ninth inning.

LaLonde, on the Cornell mound, also gave up five hits. He fanned 13 batsmen. Three of the hits were doubles by LeClaire, Ohman and Depuydt.

Manistique suffered its first loss of the season to Garden, losing 4-1. The Cardinals slipped into a tie for first place with Trenary. Trenary was idle, rain washing out its game with Rapid River.

Country Club Plays Host To Women's Invitational

Escanaba Golf club will entertain the Upper Peninsula Women's Golf association in an invitational golf and bridge affair Wednesday.

The host club anticipates 150 entrants from throughout the U. P. Reservations have already been made for 111 players, not including the host club.

Eighteen holes of golf will be played starting at 9 a. m. The invitational will close with a tea at 4 and prizes will be awarded at that time. The bridge tournament will be conducted in the afternoon.

Officers of Escanaba and Highland clubs announced today that no twilight league pairings will be made this week because of the U. P. invitational.

Reservations have been made for players from Gladstone Golf club, North Shore of Menominee, Escanaba Highland, Pine Grove of Iron Mountain, Indian Lake of Manistique, Meadow Springs of Munising, Marquette Country club, Oak Crest of Norway, Riverside of Menominee and the host club.

The U. P. invitational is rotated each year. Escanaba was host three years ago.

Mrs. Francis C. Boyce is general golf chairman for the host club. Mrs. H. P. Lindsay is general chairman for the invitational and Mrs. Carl W. Benzinger is co-chairman. On the golf committee with Mrs. Boyce are Mrs. Harry Hogan and Mrs. Robert Owen. Mrs. Norman Lindquist is in charge of bridge.

Texas Set For Pro Grid Debut

DALLAS—(AP)—Two weeks from today Texas fields its first major professional football team. Since Feb. 7, graying Jim Phelan, the veteran coach, has been in Dallas getting the club together for 18 persons who planked down $300,000 to obtain the New York Yanks franchise in the National Football League.

Phelan is confident he has a better team than the Yanks of 1951 whom he coached to one victory, two ties and nine defeats after taking over three weeks late.

"I have a better squad, much more depth and, of course, more familiarity with the players," Phelan said today as he prepared to send the first contingent of athletes to Kerrville, in south Texas' hill countrty, for the training period.

The Yanks had been working out three weeks last fall before Phelan was named coach to replace Norman (Red) Strader.

Phelan will send his centers, quarterbacks and several other backs to Kerrville July 27. The remainder of the squad will arrive there Aug. 1. Full scale practice will open Aug. 2.

Phelan has convinced the rich Texans who own the club that they must not expect a championship or even a break-even club the first year—that it will take at least a year to build a contending team.

The Texans play their first exhibition game Aug. 23 with Carswell Air Base at Corpus Christi. Then come the Philadelphia Eagles at Odessa Aug. 29, Washington Redskins at San Antonio Sept. 5, Detroit Lions at Dallas Sept. 12, and Chicago Cardinals at Houston Sept. 20. And Phelan is negotiating with Brooke Medical of San Antonio for a game Aug. 16 in Kerrville.

Reds Enter Olympic Competition Tonight

HELSINKI—(AP)—Soviet Russia enters Olympic competition tonight for the first time in history.

On the soccer field at Kotka, a bare 32 miles from the Russian border, the big, husky all-star team of the Red Army from Moscow will meet their friendly neighbors from Bulgaria.

The match is one of nine preliminaries to the genuine Olympic oscer competition, which begins Saturday. Kotka is four hours by slow train from Helsinki, but almost all the foreign visitors in Finland are planning to make the jaunt.

Reds Favored

The game probably will be a good one even though the Soviets make a habit of mopping up on their Eastern European Allies in sports. The Russians are a prime favorite to win the Olympic soccer event. Bulgaria, however, played this same team to a 1-1 draw in a recent practice game in Moscow.

Field hockey, which will complete all of its matches up to the semi-finals before the official opening of the games on Saturday, is the only Olympic sport in which the United States is not represented.

The preliminary basketball competition, designed to chop an original entry of 23 down to 16 by the time the games open, runs into its second day of double elimination.

Draw Byes

The United States, Soviet Russia and eight other teams were given free passes through these warm-ups. Yesterday's winners were Cuba, Egypt, Hungary, Canada, Bulgaria and the Philippines. They beat, in order, Belgium, Turkey, Greece, Italy, Switzerland and Israel.

While the competition was going on, the Chinese situation continued to fizzle like a damp firecracker. Both Nationalist and Communist China want to play, but they face a long battle through official red tape in the form of the International Olympic committee before they can get permission.

The I. O. C. does not begin its meetings until tomorrow and the preliminary tournament may easily be completed by the time a decision is made.

Soviet Russia never before has entered the Olympics. The Czarist State took a small part in the 1912 Stockholm games without scoring a point.

The games, which open officially on Saturday, will run through Aug. 3.

Newberry Host To U. P. Elks

NEWBERRY (Special) — Newberry Elks Club will be host to the annual Upper Peninsula Elks Golf tournament Sunday, July 20, at the Country club.

It will be a 27-hole affair beginning at 10 a. m., according to general chairman James Richmond of the Newberry club. Plans are underway to serve dinner to the golfers and their guests at the close of the tournament.

Already more than 50 entries have been received by the Newberry club, and more will be accepted up until time of play, Richmond said. A number of beautiful prizes will be presented to the winners, he said.

Newbery has a tricky, rolling course that makes it especially interesting for tournament play. With a greatly increased membership since the war, the country club has followed a program of development that makes its club one of the finest in northern Michigan.

Nap Ross, Cleveland Indian baseball scout who conducted the three-day tryout camp here last week, had some interesting comments on baseball in general that may be of some interest to readers We sat in on an informal discussion with Ross, Mike Mychko and Bert Carlson of the Cleveland group and several baseball men of this community Ross, who struck us as a most sincere and straightforward gentleman, invited us to use anything we thought interesting.

* * * * *

Ross lashed out at several major league baseball clubs in respect to bonus tactics "Some of the big league clubs don't even bother to put on training schools and tryout camps," he said .. "They just come into a town, look over the better ball players and the scout says to a promising boy: 'Look, kid, don't sign with the such-and-such club which put on its school here.' 'When you get a contract offer from them, just let me know and I'll fix you up with a better deal'."

* * * * *

"Those are the parasites of baseball," Ross said .. "They don't even work at scouting and developing players. Instead they sit back and bid for the prospects uncovered and developed by the other scouts." Ross said that when he sees a boy that he firmly believes has a chance in minor league competition he offers him what he feels is a fair contract .. Fair to the boy and to the Cleveland Indians, that is "And if he doesn't want to take it, that's alright with me .. If he feels he can get a better offer from some other organization, the more power to him .. I'll never try to hold a kid back nor will I try to cheat him in any way," Ross declared firmly.

* * * * *

Ross briefed us on a few of the things that the baseball players are trying to get from club owners this season One object is a six-day baseball week with every Monday an off day for all players .. The players also seek a five-day vacation at All-Star time, two days before the game and two days after it .. And they are also shooting for a $6,000 minimum major league salary instead of the current $5,000 bottom rate And, of course, the current bonus trend where as much as $100,000 is shelled out for untried youngsters, has come under a great deal of criticism.

Golf Tourney Plans Completed At Meet

Detailed plans for the 38th annual U. P. Golf Association tournament to be held at the Escanaba Highland and Escanaba Golf and Country club courses Thursday, Friday and Saturday, August 7, 8, and 9 were made at a meeting at Highland this past weekend.

Representatives from Menominee North Shore, Marquette Golf club, Gladstone Golf club, Oak Crest of Norway and the two Escanaba clubs attended. Other clubs in the 22-club association will abide by the decisions of this meeting in the coming tourney.

It was determined that the championship flight would consist of 32 players with the losers in the first round automatically comprising the so-called first flight. All other flights in the championship division will be 16-man affairs. The division for those 40 years of age and over who choose to compete in that division will have eight-man flights.

Contestants in both the championship tourney and the senior affair will qualify over the 18-hole route, one round at Highland and one round at Escanaba. Eighteen-hole matches will be played in the championship tourney and nine-hole matches in the senior meet.

Each player will designate on the official entry blank whether he desires to participate in the championship or the senior event, it was pointed out.

Other business taken care of at the weekend meeting were the boosting of the entry fee to $7 because of increased costs and the desire to keep the quality of prizes in each flight high, setting at $150 the amount the host club will turn over to the succeeding host club and determining the number of prizes to be awarded in each flight.

Mert Jensen, of Escanaba Highland, association president, was in charge of the meeting.

Feature Event For Stock Cars

NORWAY—A $500 added purse, with a total take for drivers of over $1000, features the stock car racing program here Wednesday night.

The program, with time trials starting at 7:30, will match top drivers from eight tracks in Northern Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. Five drivers qualify from tracks at Hibbing, Minn., Ironwood, Norway, Rhinelander, Merrill, Shawano, Seymour and Luxemburg.

The program will consist of eight races. Only the drivers qualified from the above tracks are eligible.

The five racers competing from the Norway track will be Jim Richard of Iron Mountain in Car 32, Joe Gayn of Iron Mountain in Car 11, Jack Marble of Gladstone in Car 1, Gene Chartier of Niagara in Car 74 and Lyle Zeutzuins of Iron Mountain in Car 99.

Marciano - Matthews Winner To Get Shot At Jersey Joe

NEW YORK—(AP)— Jersey Joe Walcott is dangling the million dollar prize of a September heavyweight title shot before the shining eyes of Rocky Marciano and Harry Matthews.

Joe Walcott

"I'm ready to fight the winner," said Walcott yesterday after Marciano and Matthews went through the formality of signing for their 10-round elimination bout July 28 at Yankee Stadium.

"We're ready," said Felix Bocchicchio, Walcott's manager. "We can't sign yet because we don't know where it will be. But Joe will go into training camp the last week in July, probably at Atlantic City.

East or West

"If Marciano wins, it belongs in the east. If Matthews wins, it belongs in the west. Maybe San Francisco, Los Angeles or even Seattle, his home town.

New York would be okay with me—if I get my manager's license. But we've got to get our champion's share—45 per cent—no matter where we go."

Bocchicchio has no license to manage in New York State and Bob Christenberry, chairman of the State Athletic Commission, has indicated in past statements he would not be welcome.

"We'll cross that bridge when we come to it," Christenberry said yesterday. "At the present time, Bocchicchio has no application pending in New York State."

See Big Gate

Many observers believe a Walcott bout in September with either Marciano or Matthews would bring back the old million dollar days because of the possibility of a younger man dethroning the 38-year-old champ.

The International Boxing Club has ball park dates in New York for a series of Mondays in September, Sept. 8, Sept. 15, Sept. 22 and Sept. 29 are available according to Harry Markson, boxing director of the IBC. At the moment, Sept. 8 is the most likely choice, depending on developments.

Ninth Inning Single Spoils No-Hit Game

(By The Associated Press)

Charleston's Stan Rojek stretched his hitting streak to 10 games Monday night with a ninth inning single and thereby spoiled a no-hitter try by lefty Harry Schaeffer of the Kansas City Blues.

Charleston's lone run in a 7-1 loss to the American Association pacesetting Blues came on a walk, hit batsman and two infield outs in the third inning.

Milwaukee kept pace 3½ games behind the Blues with an 18-hit, 14-3 victory at Columbus.

St. Paul took undisputed hold of third place with a 13-7 verdict over Indianapolis. Louisville, whose game with Minneapolis was rained out, dropped into fourth place a half-game behind the Saints.

Soviets May Be Diving Threat

HELSINKI— (AP) —Competition for America's Olympic divers loomed from a new quarter today —Soviet Russia.

U. S. coach Mike Peppe tagged the Russians as a major threat, second only to Mexico's squad led by the Capilla brothers, Joaquin and Alfredo.

The Russians mingled genially with American springboard and platform divers before training started, then settled down to work.

"They're all business," Peppe said, "and they look pretty good to me. They're a little rough, but they work hard."

Peppe said the 1952 squad is the best America has put in the Olympics.

Peppe has a sleek squad of women divers, headed by Pat McCormick of Pasadena, Calif. She took over America's No. 1 diving spot when Olympic champ Vicki Graves turned professional.

With her on the springboard is Zoe Ann Olsen Jensen, who took second in the 1948 Olympics .

In the men's springboard Peppe has Dave (Skippy) Browning of Dallas, Texas, Miller Anderson, former Ohio State star, and Bob Clotworthy of Destfield, N. J., and Ohio State.

The Russians? Peppe says he hasn't found out the names of their entries yet but those he has seen are "surprisingly good."

(Other games rained out.)

The Escanaba Bears, top team in the Tri County League standings, plays its first game of the season under lights Wednesday night at Stephenson's Sawbridge field.

Manager Jack Beck's boys will take on Wallace in a makeup of a rained out first-round game. The game will get under way at 8:30 (EST). Team members will leave at 6:30 from Ferguson's corner.

The Bears moved into first place last Sunday by tripping Bark River 2-1 in an abbreviated affair at the Bark River diamond. Rain halted play in the top of the sixth inning.

Wallace is a contending club, boasting a record of six wins and three losses this season. Manager Orton Melchoir's team is tied for third with Perronville.

Escanaba may be shorthanded for the game as a number of regulars will not be available. Outfielders Bob L'Houillier and Ed Lindquist work nights and second baseman Pete Kutches will be out of town.

Beck has named Jack Chriske, undefeated righthander, to start against Wallace. Chriske tamed Bark River last week for his fourth straight Tri County League victory.

Remainder of the lineup will have Jim Nyquist catching, Babe Kleiman at first, Paul Gunderman at short, John Martinac at Third, Tippy Larmay and Beck in the outfield.

Little League Action Is Postponed By Rain

The Little League feature matching Lions and Kiwanis, slated yesterday afternoon, was rained out and will be played Wednesday.

The game will pit the league's two outstanding pitchers, Ken Schwalbach and Bob Stropich, in a mound duel.

Tonight's action will send St. Joe against Rotary in the finish of one game and a regularly scheduled game.

Gladstone Racers Piling Up Points

GLADSTONE — Five Gladstone drivers took part in the U. P. Outboard Racing association events at Michigamme Sunday in which 33 boats were entered.

Fred Pepin and Wimp Mineau brought home winners. Others from Gladstone in the races were Gordon Marshall, Paul DuRoy and Rod Kelly. Judges and flagmen were Leroy Hamilton, John Schroeder and James Rattray of Gladstone.

Mineau was second in Class B and fourth in Open while Pepin took fourth in Class B. Marshall dumped while in third place 'in the third lap of a five-lap course in Class B.

Goodman Bids For Bat Title

NEW YORK — (AP) — Billy Goodman of the Boston Red Sox seems deadly serious about recapturing the American League batting championship he relinquished last year to the Philadelphia Athletics' Ferris Fain.

Goodman, the 1950 kingpin, went on a hitting spree last week that netted him 11 safeties in 25 times at bat for a .346 average. His week's stickwork was worth 11 additional points on his average, and perhaps more important, a 22-point advantage over Fain, last week's leader.

In the National League, Bob Addis, Chicago Cub outfielder, only of late a regular in the lineup, surprised by taking over the lead from the perennial pace-setter, Stan Musial of St. Louis. Addis has 56 hits in 167 appearances for a .335 figure, six points above Musial, who dropped four points over the week to .329.

Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn Dodger second baseman, kept the third spot in the National with .319, a four-point gain, but only because rookie catcher Toby Atwell of the Chicago Cubs went two for 14 and lost 13 points while falling from second to fourth, .324 to .311.

'Big' Man In Charge Of Press Ump School

A big man in his field—he goes 278 and stands 6-2½—Larry Bartell of Oshkosh, Wis., will conduct Escanaba's first umpire school here Saturday afternoon.

Sponsored by the Escanaba Daily Press, the umpire clinic is open to all arbiters of this area. Umps from the Tri County League, the Bay de Noc loop, Little League, Pony League, Waubung League and the city recreation department are expected to attend.

BARTELL

Full attendance of umpires of the Tri County circuit was assured at a recent league meeting. Commissioner Roy Bagley of Wilson requested each of the 10 teams in the league to send an umpire to the clinic. Registration fee of $2 will be paid by the individual ball clubs.

Three-Hour Class

Bartell will conduct a three-hour class at the Escanaba city diamond, starting at 1:30 (EST). Umpires attending have been asked to bring pencil and pad and chest protector to the school.

Bartell got his start in baseball in the American Legion Junior program and entered semi-pro ranks in 1941. A service hitch interrupted his career and injury in the Army called a halt to his ball-playing days.

Upon discharge Bartell entered Bill McGowan's umpire school. In 1947 Bartell umpired in the Northern League and in 1948 worked the Wisconsin State League and finished a part of the season in the Western International. A broken ankle that year put him out of action.

Giant Scout

Since then Bartell has been a player scout for Cincinnati and Chicago White Sox and for the past three years has worked for the New York Giants.

In his class here Bartell will feature the two umpire system with positions at first base, second base and home plate. Rules and comment will be held.

Assisting in the clinic will be a number of local ball players who will be used in practical demonstrations.

In case of rain the school will be moved indoors.

Reynolds Owns Top ERA Mark

NEW YORK—(AP)—Allie Reynolds of the New York Yankees is the American League's earned leader today although he holds only a slight edge over Philadelphia's Bobby Shantz and Mike Garcia, Cleveland's hard-working righthander.

Earned run averages compiled by the Associated Press through games of last Sunday disclose that Reynolds has allowed only 22 earned runs in 136 innings for a 1.46 average. Allie has an 11-4 record.

Shantz, the A's brilliant southpaw, is close behind the Yankee ace with 1.65, followed by Garcia at 1.67. Bobby, a 15-game winner, has permitted 29 earned runs in 158 innings while Garcia, with 13 victories and six setbacks, has given up 30 earned tallies in 162 frames.

Behind Simmons and Roberts in the National League comes Ken Raffensberger with a 2.36 ERA. The veteran Cincinnati lefty, in toiling 137 innings, has given up 36 earned runs.

QUESTION: How did the Philadelphia Americans acquire the nickname, "White Elephants?"

Beans Reardon

Answer: John J. McGraw, during an interview in 1902, sarcastically referred to the Athletics as White Elephants.

Q. What club had the most trouble beating Carl Mays?

A. The superlative Red Sox and Yankees' submarine pitcher beat the Athletics 23 times in a row, from Aug. 30, 1918 to July 24, 1923.

Q. When was baseball introduced at Notre Dame?

A. When Cap Anson, the immortal Chicago White Stockings' third baseman and catcher, attended Notre Dame in 1887, he showed the students how to play. Five years later the first outside game was played. The Irish beat Michigan, 6-4, in the South Benders' only game that year.

Both Suffer Losses Yesterday

Cleveland, Yanks To Clash

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Cleveland and New York, the two titans of the American League, clash head-on at Yankee Stadium tonight in the first of a vital five-game series with first place at stake.

The Indians, pre-season pennant favorites, can wrest the top rung from the Yankees, but they must win all five games. They trailed Casey Stengel's crew by 3½ games on the eve of the important series.

At the same time, Chicago's third-place White Sox and Boston's fourth-place Red Sox meet in the first of a three-game series at Fenway Park. All four contenders suffered surprising defeats by second division clubs yesterday.

Indians Drubbed

The Yankees bowed to Detroit's tail-end Tigers, 8-2;; Washington whipped the Indians, 15-4;; the St. Louis Browns thrashed the Red Sox, 7-5, and and the Philadelphia Athletics edged out the White Sox, 2-1, in 10 innings.

In the curtailed National League activity, Brooklyn maintained its 5½-game advantage over New York with a 6-0 triumph in St. Louis after the Giants had vanquished the Reds, 6-2, in Cincinnati. Rain postponed the scheduled Philadelphia Phillies-Cubs game in Chicago. Boston and Pittsburgh were not scheduled.

Cleveland has lined up Early Wynn, Bob Feller, Bob Lemon, Mike Garcia and Steve Gromek for the single game tonight and double-headers tomorrow and Thursday against the Yanks. The Yanks will open with Bob Kuzava. Rookie Bill Miller and veteran Johnny Sain will work in tomorrow's matinee twiin bill and Allie Reynolds and Vic Raschi will close out the marathon series in Thursday's twi-night bill. Cleveland has won three of four in New York this season.

Easter Returns

The Indians will be bolstered by the return of Luke Easter. The big Negro first baseman was recalled from Indianapolis yesterday and ordered to join the Indians in time for tonight's game.

The Indians could have used Easter's bat yesterday as they were held to eight hits in losing to Washington. The Nats clubbed starter Sam Jones and two relievers for 15 hits and were helped by five errors and nine walks.

Dave Madison hurled eight scoreless innings for the Browns but was batted out of the box in a hectic ninth when Boston got its five runs on homers by Dick Gernert and Dom Di Maggio. The Browns teed off on starter Ray Scarborough for five tallies in the first. Dick Kryhoski batted in two runs with three hits.

Three-hitter

Billy Hoeft, rookie Tiger southpaw, spaced 10 Yankee hits effectively to record his first major league win. He was supported by a nine-hit attack, five coming off the bat of first baseman Walter Dropo. Jim McDonald was the loser.

Dave Philley's fourth hit, a 10th-inning single off Harry Dorish, scored Eddie Joost to give the Athletics their 2-1 win over Chicago.

Carl Erskine turned back the fast-moving Cardinals with three hits as he recorded his third shutout and his ninth win for Brooklyn. The Dodgers snapped a scoreless duel in the fifth, clubbing starter Cloyd Boyer and Eddie Yuhas for five runs.

Bobby Thomson and Whitey Lockman cracked four hits apiece to help the Giants down the Reds as Jim Hearn picked up his 10th triumph, spacing 10 hits.

Sons Of Rowers Make Olympics

HELSINKI—(AP)—The greatest names in American rowing—Kelly, Ulbrickson, Hoover, Logg and McIlvaine—will flash again next week when the United States makes its bid for Olympic oar championships.

Five offspring of famous sweep-swinging fathers are on the American squad which hopes to take home at least three, and possibly four, gold medal championships.

"These boys have a great tradition to live up to," said Clifford (Tip) Goes, chairman of the U. S. Olympic rowing committee, today. "They know it and they're out to emulate their dads."

America's hope in the single sculls is Jack Kelly Jr., of Philadelphia, whose father won both singles and doubles titles in the 1920 and 1924 Olympics.

Alvin E. Ulbrickson Jr., who rows No. 2 oar on the four-oar crew with coxwain, is the son of the famous stroke and coach of the University of Washington crew. Ulbrickson Senior tutored the U. S. Eight in the 1936 Olympics at Berlin.

Charles Logg Jr. will be at the bow in the pair oars without Coxswain. His father was a top oarsman at Washington, later a coach at Princeton and is the present coach at Rutgers.

Walter Hoover Jr., of Detroit, bow in the double Sculls, is another chip off a great rowing block. Walter Hoover Sr. was the world's premier sculler in his day—world and American champion and winner of the Diamond sculls.

The United States expects to win the eight-oar championship with Navy's unbeaten crew and both the four-oar competitions. If Navy can win the fours without Coxswain it will mark the first U. S. triumph in that event.

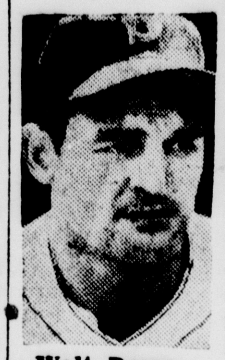
Tigers Post Win, Call For Second Base Help

WASHINGTON— (AP) — A new second baseman will take the field with the Detroit Tigers as they meet the Washington Senators here in a twi-night doubleheader today to start a four-game series.



Walt Dropo

Detroit's new manager Freddie Hutchinson called up Al Federoff from the Tiger's Buffalo farm club yesterday to give the team some defensive strength on the right side of the infield.

At the plate, Federoff has been hitting at a .291 clip for the International League Bisons. Bisons. Ninteen of his 104 hits have been for extra bases.

Kollaway Fails

Hutchinson thought the move was necessary when Don Kolloway couldn't find his old form at second since he replaced Jerry Priddy.

Priddy is out of the lineup for the remainder of the season with a broken leg he suffered while sliding into home plate July 6 during the Tigers last home stand.

Hutchinson plans to use Ken Johnson (0-0) and Ted Gray (8-9) as his starting pitchers against the Nats. It will be Johnson's first start since being acquired by the Tigers at the start of the season.

Yesterday the Tigers lived up to their name as they clawed the league-leading New York Yankees 8-2.

Big Walt Dropo paced the Detroit attack with five straight singles as Billy Hoeft, 22-year-old southpaw, won his first game of the season although he had to be relieved in the eighth inning because of the 93-degree heat that blistered Yankee Stadium.

The Yankees contributed to their own downfall with an overdose of sloppy fielding.

Although the Yanks had Hoeft in trouble throughout most of the afternoon with 10 hits, the young lefthander weathered the storm each time with good clutch pitching. But after the Yankees loaded the bases in the eighth, Hutchinson called upon reliefer Hal White, who stemmed the tide and finished the game.

It was the Tigers first victory in the last six starts. They started off the current swing of the Eastern clubs by losing three straight to the Boston Red Sox, and two to the Yankees before bouncing back into the win column yesterday.

Davey Takes On Basilio Again

CHICAGO — (AP) — Unbeaten Chuck Davey, the highly educated welterweight with the rude fists, tomorrow night will try to prove at the Chicago stadium his near loss to Carmen Basilio May 25 was all a mistake.

The 10-rounder will be televised nationally (9 p. m., EST).

In their first meeting at Syracuse, N. Y., each received one judge's vote, while the referee awarded his vote to Basilio. Carmen's victory was short-lived, however, as the New York State Athletic Commission discovered the referee dropped a stitch in his scoring. The fight was ruled a draw.

That was the second draw for the 26-year-old Davey, fancy southpaw from Detroit who cleaned up in the collegiate ranks a few years ago. He has won all of his 33 other pro bouts, 23 by knockouts.

Since the Syracuse fiasco, Davey administered a second sound drubbing to Chico Vejar, knocking him out in the fifth at Detroit June 25.

Tomorrow night's meeting with Basilio is highly important to the Detroit master boxer. Unless he convincingly disposes of the comparatively unknown slugger from Canastota, N. Y., Davey's bid for a scrap with Billy Graham and a possible shot at Kid Galivan's title may fade considerably.

Beyond Vejar and a washed-up Ike Williams, Davey's campaign has been devoid of name fighters.

Sports Roundup

By JIM KENSIL
(For Gayle Talbot)

NEW YORK—It's been a baseball maxim for years to say that the American Leaguers go for the big inning while the boys in the National are content to play for the one run.

But now with the recent display of power hitting by the senior circuit players in the past few All-Star games and with the current home run and RBI totals showing the American League leaders trailing their National contemporaries, one begins to wonder how much the oft-quoted statement means, if anything.

But who's to say?

Offhand it looks like one of those controversies that could be haggled over until such time as the Pacific Coast League turns major, thereby starting a three-cornored hassle. But rather than wait until then, we asked the man who has been closest to both leagues of late.

Marty (Slats) Marion, 1951 St. Louis Cardinal skipper and for the past five weeks manager of the St. Louis Browns, views it this way:

"Leagues don't mean anything. The ballplayers are what count. If in the past the American Leaguers consistently went for the big inning, it was because they had the material.

"Take us, for instance. We're an American League club, but we don't have the power to go for the big inning. We have to play for the one run."

Marty says he's too busy right now trying to find out what's wrong with the Browns to be bothered about the National League, but the playing pilot agrees that the N. L. dominance in homer and runs-batted-in leaders shows the loop holds a significant edge in power.

However, the slim shortstop doesn't think any team in the National can compare with the New York Yankees.

"Not even Brooklyn, Marty?"

"Not even Brooklyn. The Yanks may not have the sluggers they used to have or may not have as many long-ball hitters as the Dodgers, but they have the balance. They're more balanced than any other club."

(Incidentally, those who partake of the Yank-Dodger slugging controversy can look to the results of the pre-game home run contest when the inter-borough rivals clash Monday night, July 21, at Yankee stadium, benefit of the Police Athletic League.)

That Marty wasn't kidding about having to go for the one run or in his estimation of the Yanks was evident in the second game of the recent series between the two clubs at the stadium.

The Browns went into the eighth with a 5-2 lead and when Clint Courtney singled to start the frame, Slats gave Joe DiMaestri the sacrifice sign. It worked and the move eventually led to a run—a run that looked mighty healthy when the Yanks staged enghth and ninth inning rallies that threatened to overcome the Brownie lead.
